MAINLAND MAN SHOT TO DEATH

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was dead and two were in hospital following an early-morning shooting incident in the city's south side.

Police said the incident occurred at the Rayonier Silver Tree lumber division at about 1 a.m.

Preliminary reports indicated that two men were leaving a shift at the Rayonier plant when a third man rushed up and fired shots. A scuffle followed in which one man died.

The name of the dead man was not released, but Barshan Dhillion, 26, and Mukand Rai, 22, were in Vancouver General Hospital in fair condition following the incident.

B.C. Fruit Boycott Planned

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — Mainland stores were warned Thursday their stores will be boycotted and picketed if they sell B.C. apples and pears.

The mainland branch of SPEC issued the warning because the provincial department of agriculture refuses to halt use of herbicides, 2,4-D and 2,4,5-TP.

Leader of the SPEC protest, Marian Doucette, says the effects of the herbicide are cumulative, dangerous to pregnant women and can lead to malformation of babies.

She said posters are being prepared and the boycott will be launched in two or three weeks when the apples first appear in grocery stores.

It was not known if the IWA and FIR negotiators were planning to meet again but it was understood that FIR, bargaining agency for 120 companies, referred to the IWA negotiators that its last offer was a final one.

The official result of the IWA membership vote on the proposed contract showed rejection by 6,944 votes to 6,666, a majority of 275. But 5,300 votes were disqualified, including the entire Port Alberni local, because members failed to sign for their ballots.

The coast IWA section represents 32,000 loggers and millworkers. The turnout in the vote was 59 per cent, or 42 per cent if the disqualified ballots are excluded.

The contract offer was recommended by the coast negotiating committee of the union and by six of the nine local executive boards. Two locals, Victoria and New Westminster, recommended rejection and Courtenay did not make a recommendation.

The offer included a pay raise of 12 per cent, with a minimum increase of 65 cents an hour, a number of rate revisions and a cost-of-living clause in a one-year agreement. Present wages range from $4.45 an hour for laborers to $7 an hour for head sawyers.

In Port Alberni, IWA financial secretary Bill Hawkes said today the entire local ballot was disqualified because 24 showed up without signatures in the vote held at a mass meeting.

If the vote was conducted operation by operation, instead of a single mass meeting, only those operations which contained spoiled ballots would have been disqualified, he said.

"The local union isn't happy that the mistake was made and that the ballots had to be thrown out but it didn't make any difference in the total ballot because this local had rejected the contract by a small majority," he said.

The earlier unofficial vote count showed the contract rejected by 83 votes.

He was spotted by a police ambulance crew and rushed to Montreal General Hospital where he is in serious condition with second and third-degree burns to 60 per cent of his body.

Canada Near Top of World In Price Race

PARIS (CP) — Canada showed the second-highest increase in consumer prices in May of any of the 24 countries with membership in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

But the Paris-based OECD said today that for the overall 12 months ending in May, the Canadian increase was less than the average for the 24 countries.

In May Canadian consumer prices increased by 1.7 per cent over the previous

Riot Fills Bangkok's Streets

BANGKOK — Gunfire rattled throughout the Chinese section of Bangkok today on the third successive day of riots which have forced the government to proclaim a state of emergency and sent paramilitary troops backed by tanks into the streets.

The death toll from three nights of fighting neared 30.

Prime Minister Sanya Thammassak conferred in emergency debate with his cabinet and King Bhumibol Adulyadej, then reported that two Chinese motorcycle gangs were behind the violence.

Sanya said he does not plan to impose a curfew, but urged residents to stay home.

It was similar civil violence in October last year which triggered the downfall of the old military government and led to Sanya's rise to power.

The violence reflects long-simmering resentment by the city's young Chinese against Thai police. "The people here just hate policemen," said one police officer assigned to Chinatown.

Marine Gas Price Up 8 Cents

The energy crisis has turned the tide on boat owners who are now paying at least eight cents more for marine gas at Greater Victoria marinas.

"It's the first price rise in God knows how long," reported a spokesman for Van Isle Marine where a gallon of regular marine gas was hiked by oil companies to 52 cents from 44 cents.

At Canoe Cove Marina a similar increase from 41.8 cents to 52 cents is now in store for purchasers, but a spokesman said there have been few critical comments from boat owners.

Boaters, especially from the States, are just glad marine gas doesn't cost as much as auto gas," he said.

The average auto gas price at service stations is quoted at 62 cents a gallon, and the difference has been attributed to the 15-cent-a-gallon road tax, compared to a tax on marine gas at three cents a gallon.

Some boat owners, however, claim marine gas has gone up to 57.9 cents a gallon, almost equal to the price of auto gas, when boat gas has always been about 12 cents cheaper.

Vancouver shoppers paid the highest prices in the country for food last month and found their grocery bill 50 per cent higher than it was a year earlier.

A Canadian Press survey of 17 standard food items put the market basket value in Vancouver at $18.02 in June, compared with $17.61 in May and $12 in June, 1973.

While Victoria is not included in the survey, it is generally conceded that grocery prices here are marginally higher than Vancouver.

Stanfield Pulls Largest Crowd

Times News Services

ST. JEROME, Que. — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield received the biggest crowd of his campaign so far here Thursday night.

It also was the largest rally ever held by Conservatives in this province regarded as politically stony ground for the party.

More than 4,000 filled every available seat in the local arena and stood shoulder to shoulder in the aisles. The size of the audience, some of it brought in from constituencies several hundred miles away delighted Tory organizers and obviously impressed Stanfield.

Truth must come out in the open as to the motives which make Mr. Trudeau so evasive on this subject," the Tory leader said.

Calling on the prime minister to give a full and complete report to Canadians on the question, he said "the very foundations of our system are at stake — justice must follow its course without obstruction and without exception."

Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday, meanwhile, completed his pitch for votes in western Canada — an area that largely rejected his Liberal government in 1972 and was given a resounding send-off from Saskatchewan Liberal leader Davey Steuart.

Trudeau, concentrating on the Assiniboia riding where the Liberals feel they have a chance to defeat New Democrat MP Bill Knight, flew into Gravelbourg and this town with the message that two kidnappers of British trade commissioner James Cross are in France.

"And he continued his attack on the prime minister for refusing to deal with the issue of the Liberal contingency in Quebec for the July 8 election.

Reports covering the campaign also calculated that the rally was larger than any held by Prime Minister Trudeau or any other leader in this province.

Stanfield, speaking with unusual vigor in French, and holding his audience far better than he has in Quebec, used the occasion to attack Trudeau for evading an explanation of the government's failure to act on information that two kidnappers of British trade commissioner James Cross are in France.

"And he continued his attack on the prime minister for refusing to deal with the issue of the Liberal contingency in Quebec for the July 8 election.

After Trudeau made his plea in both centres, Steuart went to the microphone to urge voters to throw their plan to combat inflation — a form of price-and-income controls similar to the Tory plan which Trudeau has been ridiculing.

Stanfield recalled that he had demanded the two FLQ kidnappers be extradited to Canada to face trial while Trudeau has refused to take this action.

Grits, Conservatives Both In?

The Liberals have a solid lead in the crucial province in Monday's federal election, according to a Toronto Star poll published Friday.

Used Car Trade-In Suit Won

VANCOUVER (CP) A New Westminster woman has won more than $6,000 damages, including punitive damages, from a used car dealer in a settlement described as the first of its kind in Canada. Violet Morris testified in B.C. Supreme Court that her son, Gordon, wanted to trade in his 1963 Ford for a $3,200 late-model Fairlane at Bonanza Motors here last summer.

She said she signed financing documents for her son, who was a minor at the time.

The Fairlane broke down twice and was generally unsatisfactory, she testified. Under the company's 30-day exchange option, her son decided to exchange it for a Mustang.

Bonanza Motors, however, provided a 1971 Austin Mini.

Salesman Leo Mousseau first testified that $3,200 was the value of the Mini, but later acknowledged it would have been worth substantially less.

Before testimony was concluded, lawyers for both sides reached a settlement by consent of $3,200 damages plus $3,000 punitive damages. Mr. Justice E. E. Hinkson approved the settlement.

Lawyer Bob Guile, who agreed to represent Mrs. Morris without fee after he read about her plight in a Vancouver newspaper, said he believed it was the first settlement involving punitive damages.

William D. McDonald, president of Bonanza Motors, which has since gone out of business, was unavailable for comment.

Tree Reprieved

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) A cottonwood tree that two women have been fighting to save gained reprieve Thursday at least a month.

David Howard, vice-president of finance for the B.C. government-owned Dunhill Development Corp. Ltd., said no formal development proposal has been made to city officials for the block-sized area which contains the tree.

"I would guess it'll be 30 to 60 days before we present a firm development proposal to this city," he said.

But Brenda Drummond and Katherine Alliston, who have been sitting in the tree to save it from bulldozers, said they would stay there.

The pair said their protest is not only to save the tree, but is against further dense development they say will downgrade the area.

the weather

An upper level disturbance gave a band of cloud and a few showers across central B.C. overnight. Elsewhere skies were relatively clear. Skies will clear across central areas this afternoon while a few showers or isolated thunderstorms develop in southeastern B.C. Other regions will be mostly sunny as a ridge of high pressure builds onto the coast. Most regions will be sunny on Saturday as the ridge of high pressure moves slowly eastward. There will be cloudy periods along the north coast. Afternoon temperatures will be a little warmer.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE

5 A.M. FORECASTS

But the CBC says its final public opinion survey shows Conservative Party Leader Robert Stanfield may emerge from the election as head of a new minority government.

The poll, based on interviews with 1,623 people across the province between June 20 and 29, shows the Liberals have 35 per cent of the backing of those who say they are certain to vote, the Progressive Conservatives have 22 per cent, the New Democrats for 18 per cent and others one per cent.

There are 12 per cent undecided and another 12 per cent who refused to state their preferences.

The poll showed the Liberals leading in every region of the province except six constituencies just north of Toronto.

The Star said that even when the uncommitted vote in the poll was distributed on the basis of three Liberals for every six Conservatives, the popular vote in the province will come out Liberals 44 per cent, Conservatives 33 per cent, NDP 22 per cent and others one per cent.

The CBC poll of 1,200 voters nationwide showed that the number of those favoring Trudeau's Liberal party has dropped since its first poll in early June from 36 to 34 per cent, while support for the Tories has risen from 21 to 23 per cent.

Red Spacemen Aloft in Lab

MOSCOW (UPI) — The two Soyuz-14 cosmonauts today began conducting experiments inside the orbiting 20-ton Salyut-3 space laboratory after completing the first successful Soviet linkup in space in more than three years.

The Tass News Agency announced the docking about 32 hours after cosmonauts Col. Pavel Popovich and Lt. Col. Yury Artyukhin, both 44, blasted off Wednesday to chase the Salyut station, launched June 25.

It was the first successful Soviet linkup since June, 1971, when three cosmonauts docked with Salyut-1 and remained aboard for 24 days, but died while returning to Earth. Salyut-2 broke up in space in April, 1973. It days after launch.

The successful docking with Salyut-3, about one-quarter the size of the similar U.S. Skylab space station, gave a considerable boost to plans for linking up Soyuz and Apollo spacecrafts next July.

Soviet space failures over the past several years had caused concern among some U.S. space officials who questioned whether the Soviets would be ready for next year's joint flight.

There was still no indication how long the cosmonauts would remain aloft. A senior Soviet space official said Wednesday the flight would not be a prolonged one. The Skylab record is 84 days.

Popovich manually guided the Soyuz through the last 100 yards for the docking.

"It was a soft linkup," he said.

MM chairman Arnold Hean defended the expense payments, saying: "We're trying to get everybody down for a three or four-day trip. You can't expect these guys to foot this thing individually. They couldn't afford it."

He said the money was raised from "subscriptions" often in answer to MM ads, and came "from all over the place."

CHILD'S PRIZE SHARED

TORONTO (CP) — All six members of a Toronto family may share a $25,000 prize won by a child in the family, the Ontario Supreme Court ruled Thursday.

Mr. Justice William Parker directed that Sam Litz, his wife, and each of their four children should receive equal shares of the prize.

Twelve-year-old Ronni Litz won the money in a draw in May but since the ticket was in her name, only she was entitled to the money which would be held in trust until she was 18.

In their application to the court, the parents said they meant the entire family to share any winnings when they bought $10 worth of tickets in the draw.

In supporting the family claim, Mr. Justice Parker said financial shares of the children should be held in trust until each reaches 18.

Some Gas Royalties Boosted to 50%

Substantial increases on royalties on natural gas by-products not sold to the government-owned B.C. Petroleum Corp. were given cabinet approval Thursday.

Royalties will increase to 50 per cent from 15 per cent on byproducts such as butane and propane which are not contracted for sale to the BCPC.

Natural gas royalties will increase from 15 to 20 per cent for producers who have not entered into contract with the government marketing agency and further royalty increases will result in future increases in fuel prices.

Mines Minister Leo Nimsick said, "to the best of his knowledge" only five natural gas producers had not entered into an agreement and would be subject to the new schedule.

The new royalties were announced along with proclamation of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Amendment Act, passed during the spring session of the legislature, and are effective July 1.

MOWER A KILLER

TORONTO (CP) — A barefoot man was electrocuted Thursday night while cutting wet grass with an electric lawn mower in the borough of North York.

Joe Tassone, 27, was found lying beside the mower by his wife.

He suffered burns across his chest and police said his death may have resulted from a short circuit in the mower.

It establishes a board of mediation and arbitration to deal with surface rights and allows for compensation of surface owners of land where exploration takes place.

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — About 15 shouting demonstrators were arrested Thursday by police outside the Expo '74 grounds after they burned an exposition flag to protest what they called the commercialism of the world's fair.

"Burn it, burn it, down with exploitation," one youth shouted as he touched a match to an Expo '74 flag with a dollar sign on it.

The flag, doused with inflammable liquid, burned in front of the Washington State pavilion as the youths fled into a tightening cordon of police.

Police searched the clothing, boots and hair of the youths for weapons or drugs and loaded them into a single paddy wagon. About 10 youths escaped.

Police confiscated two black flags, each with a picture of a marijuana leaf on it, which the protesters had been carrying.

As the youths were piled into the paddy wagon they screamed anti-Expo slogans, including "This is the environmental world's farce" and "exploit '74."

The demonstration, near the southeast corner of the fairgrounds, went unnoticed by most fair-goers, which Expo officials said numbered about 40,000.

Expo general manager Peter Spurney said the burning of the exposition flag with the painted dollar sign "was very distasteful."

Cominco Pickets Attack 'Scabs'

TRAIL (CP) — Picketing turned ugly as striking steelworkers interfered with supervisory personnel reporting for work at Cominco Ltd. Thursday morning.

There were shouts of "scab" as ears were denoted and aerials were torn off by a crowd of 60 to 70 men, who gathered at the company's main gates here about 6 a.m.

Normally only three or four pickets are on duty at the gates. A film crew from the National Film Board was on hand to record the incident.

Cominco vice-president A.V. Marcolin said the vandalism was disgusting.

The incident occurred as a strike by 2,800 members of the United Steelworkers of America, local 480, entered its fourth day.

The Trail workers, along with about 1,200 others in Kimberley and Salmo, walked off the job at midnight Sunday.

Ehrlichman's Testimony Reveals Contradictions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Ehrlichman's previously secret testimony that he learned about a psychiatric profile of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg only after a break-in at Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office was presented to a federal court jury today.

The testimony, given to a grand jury May 14, 1973, two weeks after he resigned as President Nixon's top domestic adviser, Ehrlichman said:

"Well, I learned after the break-in that they were looking for information for what they call a psychological profile."

Ehrlichman is charged with lying to the grand jury in making that statement, as well as conspiracy in the break-in at the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, who was Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He and three others are on trial in U.S. district court.

The prosecution also read Ehrlichman's grand jury testimony for Sept. 13, 1973, in which Ehrlichman changed his testimony and said he saw the psychiatric profile before the break-in. In the testimony, Ehrlichman said his memory was refreshed by an appearance before the House committee charged with overseeing the Central Intelligence Agency and by seeing the White House blueprint for the break-in. The prosecution has presented much testimony in the trial about memos speaking of a psychological profile before the break-in — memos that were addressed to Ehrlichman and of meetings among Ehrlichman and other members of White House "plumbers" unit at which the profile was discussed.

Meanwhile, attorneys for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger asked a U.S. district court to quash a subpoena that he testify at Ehrlichman's trial.

Attorneys said Kissinger could not appear because he is holding "critical meetings" in Europe with U.S. allies and NATO officials.

Ehrlichman's attorneys obtained the subpoena on June 19 to require Kissinger's testimony.

Kissinger's lawyers submitted a memorandum stating the secretary had no information about the break-in which occurred while Kissinger was Nixon's foreign affairs adviser, and knew nothing about any conspiracy on the part of Ehrlichman or the other defendants. The memorandum was submitted by Carlyle Maw and bore the confirming initials "HK."

Yoked With a Giant

At first glance the proposal to export large blocks of electrical power from the Quebec grid to New York state, and later to import similarly large amounts, appears logical. The Quebec producers of power would move it southward during the summer and fall months when the neighboring states experience their peak demand. Comparable power would be returned northward when Canada had entered the winter and spring season with its heavy requirements for heating.

So far, so good. But the thought immediately occurs: the plan is based on an assumption that the consumer demand situation of today will remain the same in both countries over the coming 20-year period of the agreement.

Surely that is a most difficult assessment to make, particularly in regard to Canadian needs. A recent science symposium suggested that the American demands for energy would increase by 2024 to three times the present consumption. Canada presumably will expand its requirements for electrical power by a similar factor—perhaps even more, since Canadian production is at present considerably below that of the United States.

If this is the case, and the United States production of power does not expand to meet the new call, then it is obvious what will happen. Despite Canada's needs, the commitment to export power to the United States will be under heavy pressure to expand not only the amounts but also the length of the period each year during which exports will take place.

Still clear in the minds of some Canadians is the situation which obtained during the First World War when this country wanted to halt the export of hydro power from Ontario to the United States. The power had become, over the years, the vital backbone of certain U.S. industries and communities. Even though Canada sorely needed the power for war production, the arrangement with the United States could not be broken—without suffering the effects of trade changes which Washington threatened. The net result was that Canada, despite its war needs, had to continue exporting the Ontario power.

A foreign community or industry, once built or maintained on the basis of receiving certain amounts of power, cannot easily be cut off from its lifegiving power source. Urgent need in the producing country, whatever its reason, may not be allowed to prevail.

The proposed deal with Quebec's growing power interests appears to be based on the gamble that U.S. domestic supplies will increase to meet that country's needs, and that Canada's power production—particularly in Quebec—will be adequate for Canadian needs, either through increased output of the former, or curtailed development of the latter. Who can be certain that within two decades the summertime demand for power in Canada will not greatly expand; and the needs of the United States in the wintertime will not similarly increase?

The whole Quebec proposal, which is largely based on the power potential of the vast northern project now under way, should receive the closest possible scrutiny—and so should a parallel proposal for power exports from Manitoba. In any such deal—which fits right into the "continental" use concept so beloved in the United States but so dangerous for Canada—the fact must be faced that we are discussing partnership with a nation of 20 times our population and still more in terms of our economic development. Such an unequal partnership must inevitably be dominated by the larger partner, however friendly, and used for its advantage rather than that of the junior component.

In any case, the Quebec export proposal, whatever its lure as a producer of revenue, should be seen in terms of a gamble, of selling Canada short, of betting against our own future Canadian development. Such a limitation no growing nation should permit without total safeguards which would work regardless of changing circumstances. Canada at present has no such assurances. We could be trapped, in all good faith, into acceptance of a permanent position of subservience. Such a future would not be worth the relatively small amount of ready cash income involved in the Quebec proposal.

U.S. Beefs Unwarranted

Steak and eggs are not the usual kind of fare that puts nations at loggerheads but the Canadian and United States' agricultural departments are trading barbs—and even threats from the U.S. side—over the issue. Since mid-April Canada has banned the importation of U.S. beef because the U.S. cannot come up with an acceptable method of certifying export beef free of the growth hormone DES.

The growth hormone—allowed in the U.S.—has been banned in Canada and most other countries because its use has been linked with cancer in animals. Canada's import ban hit the U.S. at a particularly bad time. Our usually small American beef imports have doubled from $72 million in 1972 to $146 million in 1973. At the same time U.S. domestic prices have been falling so the Canadian market was all the more valuable to U.S. farmers.

In obvious frustration the U.S. department of agriculture has thrown up its hands, saying it is impossible to meet Canadian inspection demands to prove U.S. cattle are DES free. And U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz added a threatening footnote that Canadian eggs, pork and other foods might be banned from the U.S. as retaliation.

The American action in waving a big stick does not go down well with Canadian Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, who said Mr. Butz' statements simply hardened the Canadian attitude. In the

No dispute over cattle is going to put basic Canadian-U.S. relations on the rocks. Perhaps the requested Canadian inspection procedures are impossible to fulfil. However, the government is only exercising its duty by keeping suspect beef from Canadian tables.

And a U.S. threat in the midst of an election campaign is not going to stampede American cattle across the Canadian border.

Canada's Oldest Guessing Game

Canadians can expect another neck-and-neck finish when the results of the July 8 election come in, according to a dozen editors and publishers across the country whom I quizzed yesterday.

If they lean toward any party as the winner it is the Progressive Conservatives. They would have none of my own nagging bunch that the Liberals will be back with a few more seats. NDP strength was seen as spotty, with no remote chance of a national victory.

Their views have to be respected. Just before the 1972 election I polled the identical group at a newspaper meeting. Their assessments of their home provinces were faultless. Their stabs at guessing the national result were pretty good too. One Toronto editor predicted the rest of Canada would be sitting up late waiting for B.C. to determine the outcome. He thinks the same thing will happen this time.

The following is a summing-up of their views, taken region by region:

The Atlantic provinces (which in 1972 elected 10 Liberals and 22 Progressive Conservatives) — "Can't imagine much change even in Nova Scotia where Premier Regan has been campaigning very aggressively for the federal Liberals. Trudeau himself has made little impact. His personal campaign has been over-managed and he has come through as too pompous and sarcastic."

Quebec (56 Liberals, 15 Social Credit, 2 Progressive Conservatives) — "The Creditistes are going to lose some seats which will likely go to the Liberals. The PCs will be lucky to hold what they've got. The NDP popular vote may increase. While it's doubtful they will pick up any seats this time, there are signs that they are taking hold even in rural areas. The NDP in Quebec has never had strong leadership. If the right man surfaced and with their theme of social justice, they might do well in the long term."

Ontario (Liberals 36, Progressive Conservatives 40, NDP 11) — "The picture has firmed up in the last few days with the general consensus that the PCs are at last beginning to make some yards and that the NDP have nailed down some shaky seats. But no one is sticking his neck out and we might wind up with a lot of trading of seats in Ontario with no party gaining much advantage. Out of 25 seats in and around Toronto, 12 can be considered a toss-up. We could well have another cliff-hanger."

Prairie Provinces (Liberals 3, Progressive Conservatives 34, NDP 8) — "The change in Manitoba will be minimal and it's unlikely that the Liberals will make a dent in the solid Progressive Conservative ranks in Alberta. They just might pick up a seat or two in Saskatchewan, largely on the strength of Otto Lang's popularity. The NDP could be in a bit of trouble. Lewis just hasn't come through on the prairies; it's like listening to the same tired record over and over again."

British Columbia (Liberals 4, Progressive Conservatives 8, NDP 11) — "The Liberals will be lucky to hang onto two seats. The NDP are going to lose some, largely as a protest against Barrett, and the PCs will pick them up."

Monday will test the prescience of my professional friends and doubtless of our readers. Canada's great election guessing game is open to all. And if the vacillating, extravagant, bureaucratic buddies of Pierre Elliot Trudeau don't form a government next week, please don't remind me that my guess was wrong.

Standings in the House of Commons at dissolution were:

Liberals	109
Prog. Conservatives	106
NDP	31
Social Credit	15
Independent	1
Vacant	2

MAURICE WESTERN

A Shared Thing—Uncertainty

OTTAWA — Among weary party workers and uncommitted voters alike, the commonest expression of the moment appears to be: "We'll know next Tuesday."

We may and we may not. If either major party wins a clear majority, the matter will be settled. But if the race is close enough to produce another Parliament of minorities, the identity of the next government may be undecided until next August. The view that the election will be indecisive may be a misreading of voter inclinations; all that can be said is that it is widespread enough to suggest some interesting questions.

In 1957, in 1962 and again in 1972, those holding the power balance in the House of Commons gave their support to the party with an edge in seats. Mr. Diefenbaker's formal lead in the first case was only five (counting an independent Quebec Liberal); in the second, 16. When the smoke had cleared after the voting of October 1972, Mr. Trudeau had a margin of two over his Conservative challengers.

In such a situation, however, the choice may be rather harrowing. As in 1972, the general attitude of Mr. Lewis to the Liberals and Conservatives may be summed up in the old phrase, "a plague on both your houses." In this respect, his position differs from that of the old Progressives. Standing equally aloof from the older parties, the NDP would probably be inclined in normal circumstances to support the leader with the largest following in the House, always with reservations and probably shopping lists as in 1973 and 1974.

But time has not stood still for Mr.

DAVID LEWIS

... will he swallow?

Lewis. He is separated from 1972 by his own statements. He has said that he will not accept the Turner budget, but the Liberals have declared emphatically that they will re-introduce the Turner budget. Such modifications as may be indicated for example, by the practical consequences of the federal-provincial squeeze on oil and mining companies are likely to make it less, rather than more, attractive to the NDP.

But the party labels of those days obscured some important realities. Most of the Progressives were breakaway Liberals who had revolted earlier because party policies, in their view, were too much dominated by the Quebec bloc. They were not attracted to the Conservatives, whose policies owed too much to Ontario domination. In these circumstances they supported not the first party but the second and Mr. King (although later defeated in Parliament) remained in power through critical months and won the ensuing election.

This precedent has as much validity as the more recent ones. If the balance modifications as may be indicated for example, by the practical consequences of the federal-provincial squeeze on oil and mining companies are likely to make it less, rather than more, attractive to the NDP.

On the other hand, Mr. Lewis has been equally uncompromising in his attack on Robert Stanfield's program of price and income controls. If anything, he has concentrated his fire on the Conservatives although this may simply be a matter of political tactics—the parties are unevenly distributed across the country and calculations may suggest that the Conservatives are better placed with the Conservatives.

A slight change in the mathematics might, of course, relieve Mr. Lewis of this awesome responsibility and transfer it to Mr. Caouette. In a sense the situation would then be easier; the Creditistes accepted the budget. Even in this case, however, matters might be complicated by tensions within the party. Mr. Caouette opposes the Stanfield policy but his control over his party in the last Parliament seemed rather shaky; according to strong reports seven of his supporters were inclined to a working arrangement with the Conservatives.

It is apparent, therefore, that with anything less than a majority, we will face another uncertain period. In our system, we do not elect a Prime Minister: we elect a Parliament and it is Parliament that decides.

From the Times of July 5, 1914

The Saanich court of revision this morning reserved its decision on the appeals of the city of Victoria against the assessment of the Elk Lake watershed and the Mt. Douglas and Gorge parks "as wrongfully on the rolls." The B.C. Telephone company secured a reduction to the extent of having the right-of-way assessment struck out, but the court refused to modify the assessor's valuation of its plant in the municipality. Thus we have no guidance whatever; if Mr. Lewis is again the arbiter, we shall not know what we have decided, until the NDP emerges from a post-election caucus.

A slight change in the mathematics might, of course, relieve Mr. Lewis of this awesome responsibility and transfer it to Mr. Caouette. In a sense the situation would then be easier; the Creditistes accepted the budget. Even in this case, however, matters might be complicated by tensions within the party. Mr. Caouette opposes the Stanfield policy but his control over his party in the last Parliament seemed rather shaky; according to strong reports seven of his supporters were inclined to a working arrangement with the Conservatives.

It is apparent, therefore, that with anything less than a majority, we will face another uncertain period. In our system, we do not elect a Prime Minister: we elect a Parliament and it is Parliament that decides.

Patronage

The statement made by our Federal Minister of Labor, the Hon. John Munro on the subject of political "patronage" should have come as no surprise to anyone.

The fact is that any political party which is in power has a tendency to "reward" its "faithful" one way or another; and this is true not only on a federal level.

What about the so-called "average" Canadian? Is he not, in a way, bribed by promises and, in many cases, giving his vote according to these promises rather than making his choice on the basis of merit and honesty of a leader?

Indirectly, we, the voters, are responsible for this sort of "patronage" that erodes our democratic process and ideals.

In other words, there wouldn't be any bribes if the people refused to be bribed. Our society is usually far below the one to which Winston Churchill could only offer "blood, sweat, and tears."

We are only a few days from the time when we will cast our ballots to elect a new government. There is just one thing, and only one that each elector should keep in mind, and it isn't even original as Shakespeare said it centuries ago: "Be true to yourself and you shall not be false to any man." — E. J. Lattes, 503-548 Dallas Rd.

Enquiry

I would be interested to know some Japanese and Japanese Canadians. I have heard from an overseas emigration society that many Japanese emigrants live in British Columbia. I would like to correspond with them and ask them about Canadian life, customs and immigration rules.

I am a Japanese girl, aged 24, and am studying English shorthand. I intend to find a position as a secretary in the near future. If possible I would like to work in Vancouver as a typist or secretary some day.

I will appreciate any answers to my letter.—Etsuko Fukuoka, 76 Sagiyama, Nakaku, Yokohama, Japan 232.

Happy Birthday, Canada

By HARRY BRUCE

KEJIMKUJIK NATIONAL PARK, N.S. — Nobody can say for sure how old some of them are. They are just these strange doodles on stone, the quiet work of unknown men in an unknown century, the creations of idle moments in the bush by the shore of the black and shining lake.

The dark slate itself has been for 500 million years, and it has been blackboard smooth for millennia. For centuries before white men found the lake, the Mi'kmaq moved north from their summer fishing on the Nova Scotia coast, and stroked their canoes up river and under the great hemlocks and on into winter, and the country of the caribou, and the lake.

They were here while the Black Death swept Europe. They were here when Shakespeare was a boy and, among some of the pictures on the stone in the wilderness, there's no hint that the artists had ever seen a European or knew there was a Europe.

There's a bird like a blue heron, only he has four legs. There are stars all around him, and maybe he's a god. There's a weird, pure design. It's like an intricate French curve but it states mystery. There's a deer, and men fishing and hunting, and the lines of all these drawings are as thin as a spider's leg.

The record moves down toward us in time. The Europeans have arrived, and the stone shows it. Europe touches the way the Mi'kmaq dress. There's a trace of Europe even in the feathered headdress that has barely survived the scraping ice of 200 winters and 200 springs. One man looks vaguely like a French cavalier. There are crosses, hand tracings, and words in a language you will never understand.

Generations disappear. White men come up from the south shore to find timber for their ships and they, too, have their moments of peace as the sun sides down behind the lake. Neither can they resist scratching on the old stone the visions in their heads.

They draw ships. They know ships, and the people around here who still care about the Age of Sail will tell you that the rigging is flawless as the frozen vessels that have been sailing the stone shores of Lake Kejimkujik for, say, 150 years.

The Age of Sail dies, the men who made it die. At the turn of our own century, the lake becomes a paradise for intrepid sportsmen. They value it for the reason the Mi'kmaq have always valued it — fish and game. They leave their names on the stone, and now it's our turn.

Park naturalists take people to the stone pictures and let them take rubbings with tracing paper and a soft pencil, but they prefer you to clean the gravel off your shoes, or even to remove them, before you walk on the stone. They're trying to save this strange and priceless gallery in the wilderness from erosion, and worse.

The artist's tools were only bones, rocks and knives and, now, many of the etchings are so faint you need a guide to find them for you. You could be standing on one without knowing it.

You might get annoyed over the failure of your hunt. You might sit down to scratch your own initials, your own expression of your own permanence, right on top of the work of someone who was there centuries before you were even born.

And that's what's happening at Kejimkujik National Park. More than 200,000 people visit the park every summer, and "Joe Blow, August 1, '73," and "Eddy and Doris Forever, July 17, '71," and a whole lot of similar stuff are slowly wiping out the legacy of the stonemasons.

One park naturalist reports the supreme irony of the desecration. Right over an ancient drawing someone had scratched out — "1887-1967, Happy Birthday, Canada." The naturalist said, "I don't know what we can do about it. All I know is, it makes me sick."

Arms Trade Expanding Despite Security Fear

By DAVID FAIRHALL
Manchester Guardian

An alarming picture of accelerating worldwide arms proliferation — both nuclear and conventional — emerges from the latest analysis by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, published last week.

It points to the growing willingness of arms producers to suppress anxiety about military security to export their latest equipment. Two spectacular examples are the supply of American F-14 fighters to Iran and of Russian MIG-25s to Syria — both committed to export within two years of going into production for the suppliers' own air forces.

Had the SIPRI report been delayed a little it would have been able to strengthen its argument by quoting the United States decision to offer nuclear power technology to Egypt.

Like Iran, which is to receive a French nuclear power plant, Egypt has signed the nonproliferation treaty. But she has not ratified it, and India's recent explosion of a nuclear device shows how smoothly the peaceful uses of such power can be translated into military ones once the basic information and material is provided.

The Indian government still insists, of course, that it has no intention of developing its bomb for destructive purposes, but the fact remains that the safeguards attached to its own nuclear deal with Canada have not stood in its way.

SIPRI forecasts that the local arms race that has developed among the countries bordering the Persian Gulf, fuelled by the wealth they are obtaining from oil, will accelerate still more, with Iran and Saudi Arabia in the lead. During 1973 Iran had outstanding orders for 800 Chieftain tanks, 250 Scorpion light tanks, more than 300 F-4 and F-5 fighter aircraft, and nearly 500 helicopters. About 200 of these helicopters will be Cobra gunships armed with the latest American wire-guided anti-tank missiles. Early this year the Persians ordered 30 F-14s at a cost of $900 millions.

The Stockholm institute is deeply sceptical about the wisdom of the American Defense Secretary's new policy of flexible nuclear targeting.

"The fallacy of the claim that a nuclear weapon, provided it is sufficiently small, can be used without detrimental effects to the civilian population, has been shown in several recent studies... the establishment of the surgical strike" as an option is a reckless and unnecessary escalation of the dangers inherent in the nuclear confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The institute is equally concerned that the development of low-yield nuclear weapons (less than a kiloton) should not blur the distinction between nuclear and conventional weapons. In its view it is of paramount importance that an absolute "firebreak" be maintained between the two.

Among the SIPRI report's specific suggestions for future arms limitation agreements are restrictions on the power and location of submarine detection arrays on the seabed, control of the development of anti-submarine aircraft, and a link between the number of hunter-killer submarines and the number of strategic missile boats deployed. Such limitations might, for example, have the effect of prolonging the "credibility" of the small British and French deterrent submarine forces.

It Could Only Happen in Paris

By DAVID LEITCH
New Statesman

PARIS — Madame Mimi Santoni, currently holidaying incognito at a secret address in the South of France, is not the kind of girl you meet at a Legion of Mary Lenten breakfast. Were she, such occasions would be more heavily patronised.

Mimi's sartorial taste runs to outmoded yet becoming micro-minis, her shaggy mane is ablaze with blonde highlights, and when Mimi talks (a rare occurrence just recently) both accent and argot at once identify her as a denizen of Pigalle, the fun section of Paris which always seems awash with visiting football fans. There she worked (again until just recently) in a cabaret bar. Less specifically she herself describes her occupation as "the entertainment business."

Yes indeed. As is usual in these fun-loving circles Mimi has a child whom she adores and a husband who has what English criminal lawyers call "form". Most recently a stretch in the Sante prison, on prostitution charges. Their family residence is in the Rue Dulong, a moderately fashionable address in the 17th arrondissement which has the advantage of being close to both Montmartre and the Parc Monceau.

Long Afternoons

This apartment, where Mimi was visited by numerous friends in the long afternoons, is not, as the French pop papers say, "totally unknown to the services of police." These services received a bothered call from Mimi shortly after lunch on May 20. She told them to send a doctor fast. One of her friends had just died.

These French services are most efficient in emergencies and within minutes the neighbors were distressed to find a brace of squad cars in the street. In due course they were joined by an emergency medical squad sent by that excellent but indiscreet body of men, the Sapeurs-Pompiers of Paris.

Through some happy cultural omission there are no French anecdotes in which the principal characters are the actress and the bishop but, ironically, as will become apparent, Gallic commercial travellers are full of chirpy tales involving the fireman and the baker's wife. For 30 minutes the firemen of the 17th arrondissement applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation techniques on Mimi's guest, put to no avail.

At least one of them, who leaked the story afterwards, must have been aware he had stumbled on a new mythological archetype — let us call it the Lady Entertainer and the Cardinal. The fireman in question was a TV addict and he had no difficulty in recognising the man on Mimi's floor. Here was no itinerant Celtic supporter. The corpse, for the visitor had clearly departed for a better world, belonged to no less than Cardinal Jean Danielou, by some way the best-known and admired church leader in France.

It seems there are more precedents than one might guess for gentlemen, though not as far as I can discover cardinals, expiring of natural causes in circumstances which, to borrow another piece of French journalese, "involve the perfume of scandal".

The police know the form. They do not like to upset the nearest and dearest with squalid details. The convention is that a statement is issued noting the deceased was struck down by a heart attack in the street outside the incriminating address. This they did, after a conference with Pere Andre Costes, the provincial of the Jesuit order in France to which the cardinal belonged.

However, at some point things began to go wrong with this humane and well-tried system. Before the Jesuits had time to administer the Last Unction the staircase at 56 Rue Dulong was already full of jostling journalists, largely, it was noted, from the gutter press. According to some reports they were actually there before the Commissaire of the 17th arrondissement who was, to put it mildly, overwhelmed that a prince of the church, a conservative theologian and who was particularly well known for his severity on the issue of chastity.

Cardinal Danielou's red hat, awarded in 1969, largely stemmed from his stringent moral line on the vexed question of the celibacy of the priesthood. His thundering television attacks on the concept of married clergy were, in fact, the basis for his post-mortem identification by the emergency fireman.

To make him even fairer game, in the eyes of Le Canard at any rate, the dead man had also been an implacable opponent of the ecumenical movement in all its forms. They resented him all the more for being a nice and unpretentious man who was always open to the press.

Despite his conservative views he liked to drink with reporters, and was charitably content to engage them in simplistic theological arguments, late into the night if need be. This moral capital, acquired over many years, goes some way towards explaining why the story was hushed up for so long.

But no more. In recent years the Church in France has been like the dog that did not bark. There were several election issues which might well have had an ecclesiastical overtone — abortion and contraception reforms figured prominently in the programs of the three major candidates, yet electoral debates were conducted on a strictly secular level.

The only point at which any remotely religious consideration was taken into account concerned the over-60 voters and the three marriages of Jacques Chaban-Delmas. It was thought in some circles

We share with the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police a growing uneasiness over the similarity of the uniforms. If the difference between the uniforms begins to blur, so does our understanding of the powers vested in each; and that is most unfortunate because the difference is absolutely essential in a well-organized society.

It is a logical extension of this psychology that the more this uniform can be made to resemble that of a legitimate in mind is the standardization of police uniforms and vehicles throughout Ontario to distinguish policemen from security guards, investigators and "even truck drivers."

Our inclination would be to require the security guards to move away from the police, rather than the other way around. Let them standardize — and in a way that will tell the public plainly that they are not to be confused with policemen. That would still allow us to tell the difference between a Metro Toronto policeman, an officer of the Ontario Provincial Police, and a Mountie.

Panic About Inflation More Dangerous Than Inflation Itself—City Banker

BY AL FOREST
Times Business Editor

Panic about inflation is a greater danger to Canadians than inflation itself says J. A. Baines, Victoria manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The worst thing to do is go on a spending spree or hoard coins and gold as a hedge against inflation.

"This only makes the problem worse."

The best thing to do is use restraint and put pressure on governments to cut back on their spending.

"The solution lies not in federal wage and price control but in government self control in regard to its own spending."

Heavy spending by all levels of government was the largest single factor in inflation, he said.

Best Evidence

Baines said there was good reason for optimism as long as Canadians tried to find the solution together and not adopt an attitude of every man for himself.

The best evidence available to Canadian economists indicates the inflation rate can be held to about 10 per cent this year as long as governments exercise self control and individuals do not panic, he said.

Panic leads individuals to take gambles that may backfire. And they are certain to add to the inflation problem.

For example, there is no certainty that an investor will make a profit by buying gold. The price goes up and down. If he buys at the wrong time he may lose his shirt.

And at the same time, any move an individual makes to buy gold in effect reduces the value of the money in his pocket.

"Exchanging dollars for gold is an unpatriotic act," Baines said.

"It is a lot like buying life insurance. The only way you can win is to die. When you buy gold you are betting that your currency will die and the fact you have exchanged dollars for gold makes your money that much weaker."

(This is the second of two articles on inflation and in it well-known Victoria banker J. A. Baines gives his views. In Thursday's Times UVic economist Dr. R. V. Cherneff discussed the subject.)

"The dollar will remain strong as long as we continue to have faith in it and not exchange it for gold."

He said one of the best ways to fight inflation, both from an individual and national point of view, was through the safe method of depositing it and collecting interest.

"If our inflation is increasing at 10 per cent and you get 10 per cent on your deposits, you are at least standing still as long as there is no income tax to pay on the interest."

(The federal government is considering making $1,000 per year in earned interest tax-free).

Not Effective

On the question of wage and price controls, the best authorities say that controls have not been effective in the United States or any place they have been applied. And no one has refuted that statement.

Some experts feel they could be valuable if applied correctly but nobody seems to know how to achieve that. Under the circumstances, the controls do not solve the problem.

If Canada did bring in controls, and there were not similar controls in other countries we trade with, we would get into a two-price system that would create serious problems," Baines said.

"For example, if you have

$2 million worth of lumber down at Ogden Point ready for export, how do you capture it for the Canadian market where it would only be worth about $1.25 million under a two-price system? And would you have separate price scales for those manufacturing high-priced lumber for export and those working on lower-priced lumber for the domestic market?"

Costly Mistakes

He said individuals can make very costly mistakes when they try to find a hedge against inflation.

Two years ago real estate would have been an excellent buy but there are many uncertainties now.

A major problem is the high mortgage rate.

"It is already 11.5 per cent and there is very little money available at that rate. You can gamble and apply for a mortgage and when it comes through in two or three weeks, maybe the rate has jumped to 12 per cent. I don't see how it can avoid going to 12 per cent very soon. At 12 per cent the cost of a purchase doubles in eight years."

He said those with a house can sell it for a profit but then they face the prospect of paying that much more for some other place to live.

"Those who don't have any real estate are scared to death and saying: Well let's get it because it's going to power dams and pipelines could put severe inflationary pressure on the Canadian economy, he added.

Running Rampant

But while inflation appears to be under control in North America, it is running rampant in the rest of the western world, partly as a result of heavy U.S. investments.

In a speech at the University of Victoria, Dr. Neil Perry of the board of the International Monetary Fund expressed concern about the great volumes of United States currency being invested in all countries in the last two years.

"Some Americans are going out into the world and buying everything they can lay their hands on. They are buying up precious gems. They are paying prices for lumber as though it were going out of style."

"They are trying to avoid flooding any one country with U.S. dollars but the impact of their buying is a continuing problem for the western world."

If too much of this surplus cash found its way into Canada, the resulting inflation would be fierce. The Canadian government is watching this situation.

Baines said that while inflation was an international problem, the actions of individuals at the local level could have an important influence on the outcome.

The individual should realize that everything he does has an impact on the economy of the community. Panic and speculation creates more inflation and adds to the problem for himself and his neighbors.

Baines said he expects Canada's inflation would remain under fairly good control over the near term.

He disagreed with minority views that North America is on the verge of a serious recession or on the brink of runaway inflation leading to a depression.

He said there are signs that inflation is easing in the United States and could be held in check in Canada as long as government spending is not excessive. Large projects like

Victoria Firm to Play Key Role In Recovering U.K. 'Liquid Gold'

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

VICTORIA MACHINERY DEPOT, on Bay Street is destined to play a key role in the North Sea offshore oil industry, which is expected to catapult Britain into unprecedented prosperity.

VMD president Harold Husband said Thursday his company will lead the way in development of deep-water submersibles and underwater oil production chambers needed for the booming industry.

Husband has just returned from a month's survey of the North Sea scene.

Fifty-five exploratory oil rigs are working, the biggest concentration being in the Ekofisk field, 130 miles off Norway.

Between the field and the Norwegian coast lies the Norwegian trench which drops to 2,000 feet in places.

Because of the trench, the oil will be pumped by a seabed pipeline to the Tees River in Scotland, where it will be processed.

industry on which Britain pins its hopes of a healthy economy.

"The supply requirements," Husband said, "are extreme. They expect by 1978 to have 250 supply boats, each costing about $1 million."

The British government is also geared to take a large role in the shipping side of the operation. Husband said it owns 47 per cent of the big Harland and Wolff yard in Belfast, 50 per cent of Cammell Laird's Liverpool yard and 80 per cent of Govan Ship Works on the Clyde.

Beneath the sea, fleets of submersibles will be needed to check and service the pipelines and oil drilling rigs.

VMD will help to build prototypes of the underwater fleet.

While he was overseas, Husband flew over the 340-foot oil rig, built by VMD in the 1960s, that's now one of many working in the area.

It will appear Lilliputian in comparison with rigs now being built in Scotland.

"Contracts have been let for two rigs that will be 777 feet and cost $125 million each," Husband said. "The rigs being built are so huge they have to be built on their sides. They're running short of steel so they're also using reinforced concrete."

Being so huge, Husband said it will take 10 tugs to tow each rig to the field, easing along at one knot.

Britain, he said, now has a billion dollar deficit a month and is looking to the offshore industry to pull the country out of its economic agony.

"The one bright spot on the horizon is North Sea oil," he said.

SPICE ISLAND NEWEST TAX HAVEN?

LONDON (AP)—The eastern Caribbean spice island of Grenada is expected to become a tax haven, the Financial Times says.

The Grenada government may announce a starting date of Jan. 1, 1975, and a committee has been looking into a scheme for no income tax and no estate tax.

Grenada is likely to charge lower fees than the Bahamas and Cayman Islands to attract business, the paper says.

More Gas Found In North

OTTAWA (CP)—Drill stem testing has confirmed another multi-zone gas discovery in the Mackenzie Delta, Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien said Thursday.

A Gulf Mobil well 68 miles north of Inuvik flowed at rates up to 11 million cubic feet a day during testing, Chretien said.

The find raises the number of separate oil and gas discoveries in the delta region to more than 16 and adds to needed support construction of gas transportation facilities to the region.

Many of the oil and gas finds are located close to the coast, Chretien said.

This enhances the potential of the adjacent continental shelf under the Beaufort Sea. Environmental studies are underway to develop conditions for protecting the environment before drilling systems begin operation in the summer of 1976.

Investments in Canadian oil stocks must be made with caution because of the uncertain political situation and its effect on the Canadian oil industry, says Pemberton Ltd. of Vancouver.

Ex-Grand Mufti Dies at 77

BEIRUT (UPI) — The former grand mufti of Jerusalem, who led three Arab revolts against the British mandate in Palestine and fought Jewish emigration, will be buried Sunday in Beirut, it was announced today.

The mufti, Haj Amin Husseini, died Thursday of heart failure. He was 77.

Husseini was born in Jerusalem in 1897 and became grand mufti in 1921, a post his father and grandfather had held before him. His title made him the patriarch of Palestinian Moslems — their spiritual and political leader.

He led three uprisings against the British in Palestine — in 1920, 1929 and 1936, and was banished several times.

He lived in Iraq, Iran and Turkey before moving to Germany in 1941. Husseini maintained he did not co-operate with the Nazi leaders.

"My journey to Germany was not a mistake" he said in an interview earlier this year. "Zionism and imperialism were pursuing me. Germany was the only place I could go at that time, but I did not co-operate with the Nazis."

When the Second World War ended, he was arrested by the French authorities but escaped, using the passport of former Syrian premier Marouf Dawaibi.

Husseini lived in Cairo from 1946 until 1959 when he fell out with the late Egyptian president Gamal Abdel Nasser who frowned on Husseini's links with the fanatical Moslem brotherhood.

FAST URGED FOR POOR

NEW YORK (AP) — The Roman Catholic archbishop of New York, Terence Cardinal Cooke, has urged the city's 1.8 million Catholics to start fasting and abstaining from meat each Wednesday in concern for the "starving, desperate poor" in central Africa and southern Asia.

"Today, the needs of millions of our neighbors — all our brothers and sisters in God's human family — have become a mighty voice that cries for our help," he said Thursday in a letter to be read in the 408 parishes of 10 metropolitan counties this Sunday.

The archbishop called for prayer, support for church relief services and contacts with government representatives so that the "stricken lands can be saved from death-dealing starvation."

He also recommended that Catholics set aside each Wednesday for the next year as a day of fasting, which means taking only one full meal on that day, and also abstaining from meat.

Chris Wins, Ken in Final

LONDON (AP) — Teenager Chris Evert won the all-England women's singles title at the Wimbledon tennis championship today by beating Russian Olga Morozova 6-0, 6-4.

The biggest victory in the career of the 19-year-old American came after her fiance, Jimmy Connors, gained Saturday's men's final with a comeback 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 victory over Dick Stockton of the United States.

For a time it appeared Connors would be meeting Stan Smith in an all-American final. Smith won the first two sets against Rosewall.

But the gritty Aussie, at 39 a 22-year Wimbledon veteran, stormed back to reach his fourth Wimbledon final — he has never won the title — with a 6-8, 4-6, 9-8, 6-1, 6-3 victory over Smith, co-ranked with Connors as the top men's player in the United States.

The Connors-Stockton match, played on the No. 1 court, pitted two young men who've competed against each other since they were tykes.

Stockton, 24, had advanced further than any other dark-horse here, and he appeared en route to a major upset in the first set, which he won by forcing Connors into volleying errors.

But Connors took command early in the second set when he broke service twice to lead 4-2 and was never in trouble after that.

Stockton appeared shattered by Connors' whirlwind attack and could not recover the form he had displayed in knocking out second-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania in the fourth round.

Rosewall's stunning comeback spoiled the chances of the first all-U.S. final at Wimbledon in 27 years. The last was when Jack Kramer beat Tom Brown 6-1, 6-3, 6-2 in 1947.

The packed crowd at centre court rose to its feet cheering wildly as Rosewall completed his comeback when Smith returned service into the net to lose the match.

The key to Rosewall's victory was winning the tie-breaker in the third set.

After taking the fourth set, winning the first four games and clinching it with two great backhand winners in the seventh game for his third break of the set, Rosewall jumped on top in the final set with a break in the fourth game for 3-1.

CLIFF BEATS WORLD CHAMP

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Canadian champion Cliff Thorburn won the $20,000 Victorian Club's Royal Masters snooker tournament with a breathtaking display Friday night.

Thorburn beat two-time world champion John Spencer of England 160-67. Earlier in the week, the 26-year-old native of Victoria had predicted that one day he would be world champion.

With an unfinished break of 47, Thorburn won the first frame 81-29. Then he went on to double that score while Spencer was powerless to hold him.

After the game Spencer, of Manchester, said: "The way Cliff played tonight proved that he is really the up-and-coming snooker player in the world today."

In the second frame, Thorburn had breaks of 38 and 33 while Spencer's only worthwhile break was also 33.

Dutch Bubble, Germans Testy

MUNICH (Reuter) — Helmut Schoen and Rinus Michels, rival coaches of the West German and Dutch football teams, put their players back to work at training camps today before Sunday's World Cup soccer final in the Munich Olympic Stadium.

With a day of rest and easy-paced workouts behind them after bruising contests Wednesday which won them places at the soccer summit, the coaches planned more serious training and study of their opponent's strategy.

Both sides held leisurely training sessions Thursday with several probable starters in the final doing little or no work.

The West Germans have moved to the Munich area, to ease the tension for Bayern Munich players goalkeeper Sepp Maier, captain Franz Beckenbauer, Gerd Mueller, Uli Hoeneß, Paul Breitner and Georg Schwarzenbeck.

For the first two rounds of the finals, the West Germans were in the north of the country, and initially at least they came in for razzing from the crowds that produced angry reactions from even the cool Beckenbauer.

Only in the last two games, against Sweden and Poland, did the fighting spirit of the Germans break through, winning them praise of the experts who had made them favorites for the World Cup — and the applause of the home crowds.

In the first round, too, when based in rural quarters at Malente, there were angry charges from German players that Schoen had cooped them up, monastic-style.

The Dutch, on the contrary, left all their problems, at home and reporters have found their camp bubbling with relaxed confidence.

So pleased are they with their quarters at Hiltrup, in the Ruhr area, that they have delayed their 650 kilometre (400 mile) journey to Munich until Saturday.

The main question mark about the lineups of the finals is over Dutch winger Rob Rensenbrink, who left the field Wednesday with a badly pulled thigh muscle.

He did not train Thursday, but walked about the pitch at Hiltrup and said the leg felt better.

The doctor thinks I have a 10 per cent chance of playing on Sunday," Rensenbrink said. But the Dutch team seemed reconciled to be without him.

Experienced Piet Keijer, recovered from a throat infection which kept him off the substitutes bench for the Brazil game, was ready to move back into the lineup.

Brazil and Poland, who lost their group B chance to West Germany, meet in the third-place playoff at the Olympic Stadium Saturday.

Brazil's defending champions were a disheartened group when they moved into their Munich quarters.

Only Few Island Spots Show Declining Catch

Salmon fishing has tapered off in a few Vancouver Island locations during the past week.

But elsewhere, everything looks good.

Chinooks up to 31 pounds have been caught around the mouth of San Juan Bay at Port Renfrew, but those large coho still haven't shown up.

Secretary Island waters, pretty good for most of the week, were visited by a pod of killer whales early Thursday and return dropped off. Light rods and strip or minnow had been bringing in chinooks up to 24 pounds. Hopefully, fishing should return to normal by the weekend.

Beecher Bay fishermen trolling off Beechey Head or in the vicinity of the "trap shack" have landed chinooks up to 34 pounds using 1½ to 2 pounds of weight, 70 to 100 feet of line and minnows. This type of gear is also producing sockeye (which showed up last Friday) up to 6½ pounds.

Buzz-Bombs (four-inch, Polar Bear variety) are being used with great success for chinooks up to 17 pounds off the Sentinel Island kelp bed.

On the other side of William Head, the same lure brought inmate Michael (Smokey) Lewicki a 49-pound chinook while spin-fishing off the old quarantine docks.

Oak Bay fishermen have found the evening tide change a good time to pick up chinooks ranging from 17 to 21 pounds in The Gap and on Fiddle Reef. Use four to six ounces of weight, about 100 feet of line and super-strip or a green hoochie.

Sanich Inlet is still spotty with only the odd catch of chinooks coming in from the Deep Cove Marker, Willis Point, the Mill Bay Marker, Bamerton and Goldstream Island on strip or minnow.

Returns of large chinooks are picking up off Bold Bluff, Separation Point and Portier Pass while smaller salmon of the same species are being hauled in by fishermen right in Cowichan Bay.

Moochers and down-rigger owners seem to be getting the best results in the last four spots.

Further up-Island, roughly a 50-50 mixture of chinooks and coho is coming in off Harman and Northwest Bay while chinooks provide the main return near Five Fingers and Entrance Island.

Coho up to seven pounds and chinooks up to 30 are being located in the mouth of Alberni Inlet.

Many limits of small coho are being landed off Bastes Beach and Comox Bar but fishing for chinooks has slowed down. Lime-green flashtails or small plugs and spoons with a little red on them work best either right at dawn or dusk.

Quatnaski Cove, Frenchman's Pool, Tyee Pool, Maude Island, Stuart Island and Cape Mudge waters are yielding good catches of chinooks and the latter area is also producing coho.

Trout anglers are having to work the larger low-elevation lakes and some of the higher bodies of fresh water on the Island in order to fill their creels. Best catches have come from Cowichan, Sproat, Elsie, Ash, Cameron, Comox, Upper Campbell, Buttle and Sayward Forest lakes.

NIBBLES: Speaking about trout fishing, new son Greg got his first canoe ride on Saturday while this writer was catching a trout with nearly every other cast in Silver Lake ... Large patches of melting snow not too far above the lake kept one end cold and the action hot.

Latest word from the fish and wildlife branch is that the new hunting regulations are now at the printers and will be available for distribution shortly.

One good thing about the gasoline crunch, dog-sledding is making a comeback in parts of the north country where snowmobiles have been the main source of transportation for several years.

Pitcher Yields One Hit

With Tom Sallaway's one-hitter greasing the way, Farmer Construction slipped into first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League with a 5-0 shutout over Greaves Movers at Lambrick Park.

Sallaway struck out seven batters, yielded five bases on balls and gave up a single to Barry Cozier in the fifth inning as Farmers humbled the former leaders.

Three infield hits in the fourth frame provided the only run Farmers really needed. Dave McDonald beat out a grounder to second, Mike Baer bunted and John Yankoski, the league-leading hitter, bashed out a grounder to the shortstop to score McDonald.

More Playoff Berths For Little Leaguers

Changes in the tournament program are providing more opportunities for all-star baseball teams from Greater Victoria's Little Leagues to compete at the district championship level.

This season there will be three area tournaments with the top two teams from each going on to the district playoffs. Previously, there have been four area tournaments, with one team from each advancing.

July 13 to 17 are the dates set for the area playoffs and the district tournament begins

July 20 and ends July 29. National, Triangle and Layritz will join host Beacon Hill Little League in the Area One tournament at Hollywood Park.

Hampton is staging the Area Two tournament at Hampton Park, competing against Lakehill, Sidney and American Little Leagues.

With host Esquimalt-Victoria West in the Area Three tournament at Lampson Street Park will be Central Saanich, Gordon Head and Oak Bay.

The six qualifying teams from the area playoffs advance to the district tournament at Allenby Park. Winner of the district title goes on to the B.C. divisional playoffs, Aug. 3 to Aug. 9, at Lambrecht Park. The Provincial champion moves into the Canadian championships at Erindale, Ontario, and the winner from that event goes to the Little League world series at Williamsport, Pennsylvania.

Whalley last season won the provincial and Canadian titles and competed at Williamsport. In that world series, Taiwan won its third straight title.

In keeping with the character of the whole day, the race committee has made it clear it reserves the right to adjust the rules should they be in the mood.

They report the "use of whips to encourage crew members will be frowned upon."

They also warn — "Any craft which rams another, or resorts to use of cannon or other weapons of naval warfare in order to gain advantage, is subject to disqualification."

Bellies Spark Victory

MELBOURNE — Wayne Goss and Paul Parnell of the Western Lacrosse Association's New Westminster Salmonbellies led the scoring Thursday when Canada defeated a Victoria State side 23-18 in an exhibition game.

Goss scored five goals and Parnell got four in the game which was a warmup for the world field lacrosse championship this weekend.

CHELSEA PAYS RECORD PRICE

LONDON (Reuters) — David Hay, Scottish World Cup soccer player, has joined Chelsea of London from Scottish League champion Glasgow Celtic for a record transfer fee of about $625,000.

The fee is the highest ever paid by Chelsea and is a record for a transfer involving a Scottish player.

Province Freezes Development At Whistler Until Year End

An interim development freeze has been placed on land in the Whistler Mountain area at the request of the Squamish-Lillooet Regional District.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said it will remain in effect on the 20,000 acres until the end of the year.

He cited massive servicing problems in the rapidly-growing area as the major reason for the freeze and denied the move has anything to do with the pending Vancouver-Garibaldi bid for the 1980 winter Olympics.

Land speculation in the area was mentioned, however, when Williams said the freeze "is also geared to seeing the windfall is not as great as many of those in the valley thought it would be."

Both he and Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer said the Olympics was not a factor in their decision although any winter sports development would be exempted from freeze.

The Vancouver-Garibaldi group hope to bid officially for the Olympics later this month but is waiting the go-ahead from Williams, who said he would announce the government's decision on financial backing shortly.

The ministers said the regional district requested the freeze because of growing concern that new subdivisions and other developments would be built before the land-use and servicing plans had been completed.

Water and sewerage servicing for the entire area would cost about $7 million, said Williams, and cabinet is concerned about the high costs in relations to the relatively small number of people receiving the services.

Besides servicing problems, said Lorimer, the regional district is concerned about the environmental and pollution aspects of a rapidly growing population in an area which now hosts about 800 permanent residents.

The frozen area runs down a nine-mile corridor of highway and is three miles wide at its widest.

Williams also said the government wants to ensure that windfalls on the land in the area "are not as great" as was expected, but he declined to say how the large profits could be pared down by the government.

He said the matter is under discussion in preparing the community plan for the area.

About 80 per cent of the entire area of the frozen land is owned by the Crown but in the lower Whistler basin, where most of the development is centred about 60 to 70 per cent is privately owned.

The freeze includes the Garibaldi ski lift area and Williams said if the Olympic bid goes ahead and is accepted, the winter sport developments would be excluded from the freeze.

During the interim freeze period, the government's Environment and Land Use Committee will be responsible for authorizing approval of any development projects.

Single family homes and duplexes on existing lots will not be affected by the freeze and projects under way with approved land-use contracts will not be stopped.

Williams also said projects unlikely to prejudice the plans being prepared will go ahead. He said he had no information on major developments which might be stopped because of the freeze.

First Plateau Dividend

The provincial government has earned $667,125 in its first dividend cheque from Plateau Mills Ltd. sawmills in Vanderhoof.

The government bought controlling interest in the three sawmills one year ago for $7 million.

Resources Minister Bob Williams said the dividends will be used for the government's "continuing pioneer work" such as the new sawmill in Burns Lake.

The cheque does not represent the total earnings of the government-owned company last year, he said, because some money was pumped back into the firm for expansion.

Zero Population Seeks U.S. Immigration Slash

WASHINGTON (WP) —

Zero Population Growth, Inc. (ZPG), which is completing a two-year study on U.S. immigration, has called for a 90 per cent slash in legal immigration and a crackdown on the millions of illegal aliens.

Legal immigration now accounts for a quarter of the U.S. population growth, ZPG said, and estimates for illegal immigration range as high as three times that amount.

In view of the declining national birth rate, immigration is progressively assuming a larger portion of growth, according to ZPG, a privately-funded group concerned with overpopulation.

"We're not seeking to totally shut the door," said ZPG director Bill Ryerson. "We realize the influx has been an important factor in the background of this country. But he added, "Moving mass numbers of people is no longer a real option for the world."

"Immigration poses a serious threat to the achievement of population stabilization," said Robert Dennis, ZPG's executive director. "In the next 30 years, immigrants and their descendants will add 20 million people — the equivalent of the present population of California — to our numbers."

Many of the immigrants currently admitted, the group's report states, are highly-skilled professionals with the kinds of talents developing countries can ill afford to lose.

The report adds that about two-thirds of the foreign students from developing countries remain in the United States following completion of their studies.

BABY SOLD FOR $875;

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A Toronto woman has been charged with making a false registration of birth following an investigation by police into what they described as the sale of a 10-day-old baby for $875 to a Collingwood, Ont., couple last year.

Beverley Ann Leishman, 18, was charged Thursday. Police said there is no specific reference in the criminal Code to selling children.

Police said they believe the baby girl, now 18 months old, was handed over to a Collingwood couple, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Smith, now living in Oyen, Alta., near Calgary.

YOU'VE SUFFERED ENOUGH.

If you ever fed a gas guzzling monster's fuel habit, you felt you owed yourself at least a look at economy cars.

But most economy cars made you cringe. And stoop. And hunch over 'til you got cramps. When you drove an economy car everything rattled, including your teeth. And it just wouldn't do what ever you wanted it to. Sure, there were well-made, sporty little cars. Sporting healthy price tags.

Poor you.

Economy meant suffering. And comfort was a luxury you didn't feel comfortable affording.

Which is exactly why Honda developed the Civic the way they did. Civic is incredibly stingy with gasoline. Of all 1974 cars tested for gas mileage by the US Environmental Protection Agency, the 4-speed Honda Civic came in first at 29.1 miles per gallon. That's 34.9 miles per Imperial gallon.

And while Civic is a tidy package outside, it's also roomy inside. That's the beauty of Civic's unusual trapezoidal shape.

The price you've been paying for an economy car is in leg room, stability and performance. Suddenly, there's one notable exception.

It allows a Civic to slip into a tight parking space, as a small car should.

It also apportions a surprising amount of roomy interior space for passengers, front and rear.

But Honda wanted to build an economy car you'd be thrilled to own. So they gave it performance features. Like rack and pinion steering. So responsive you can make a 90° turn without repositioning your hands on the steering wheel.

Like self-adjusting, power-assisted front disc brakes. Like MacPherson strut suspension, independent on all four wheels. This suspension is expensive, and rare, on an inexpensive car. Honda feels it's worth every penny for the firm, yet cushioning ride it gives.

Like front wheel drive. The engine weight over the drive wheels improves traction. And pulling is much more efficient than pushing for the engine. And front wheel drive carries power to the drive wheels without wasteful linkage. It also eliminates the hump running under the passengers' legs.

The cost of all these performance extras? Not a penny extra.

Now think about comfort in an economy car. Honda did. And Honda mounted the engine sideways to free up precious space on the inside.

Honda gave the Civic extra wide doors and seats that tilt at a touch, so that all the passengers can get in and out without doing pretzel imitations.

The air flow system circulates air constantly. And is combined with a super efficient heating and cooling system that keeps you toasty all winter and fresh all summer.

Honda Civic has door-to-door carpeting that snaps out for machine washing.

And more instrumentation than you'll find on many standard cars.

The cost of all these comfort extras? Not a penny extra.

Honda Civic is all this and more. Yet, Honda Civic sells for less than $3000.*

So if you're thinking of an economy car, we think you'll feel much better than you have before.

Red Hot Lover Explores Burlesque to Pathos

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A breezy beginning to a three-play summer repertoire season was provided Thursday by Phoenix Players at University of Victoria's Phoenix Theatre.

Opening choice was a good one — Neil Simon's The Last of the Red Hot Lovers, an uncomplicated comedy about an ineffectual man's three attempts to launch an extramarital love affair.

Each attempt occupies one act of the play and if a good mature actor with a well-honed comedy sense is available for the central role it can hardly fail to come off.

That actor was available to the Phoenix Players in John Krich who has all the necessary attributes.

The role that made a Broadway star of James Coco almost overnight, is a tour de force, keeping the actor on stage solidly throughout and demanding that he explore a range all the way from a light touch of burlesque to a subtly drawn pathos.

Barney Cashman is — in the words of one of his would-be lady loves — a decent, kind loving human being. He really loves his wife who was his schoolboy sweetheart but at 47 he is desperate for a last fling.

Only — as he says himself — "Boy, can I pick them!"

The first he invites to his absent mother's apartment is a tramp and he is as incapable of dealing with the directness of her sexual approach as he is of satisfying her cigarette craving.

Sheila Punshon plays this part with suitable hardness and a perfunctory air of contempt. The young actress's weakness appears in her scenes of rage in which vocal and emotional lilliputian are strictures causing her to become mopey and shrill. In the second episode, Virginia Lace plays a self-deluded would-be actress with neurotic sex hang-ups. She gives herself to the role earnestly, playing off with an amusing deadpan appreciation of its comedy but managing also to feel out an inherent pathos.

But the supporting role honors ultimately belong to Susan Goldwater, excellent as the last and least likely of his unlikely choices, the friend of his wife and his friend's wife who is as close as one can get to the snake pit without falling in.

Miss Goldwater, who was last seen and most captivatingly as one of McHeath's girls in Threepenny Opera, is wholly convincing as a fortyish, emotionally disturbed wife. Her inner spring is so tightly wound that one can almost hear it twang.

Among the memorable things that delighted the first-night audience was Krich's beautifully paced silent first scene.

Tony Bancroft's direction is properly spare, allowing the play to work without clutter. Set, costumes and lighting are fine.

The Last of the Red Hot Lovers will be repeated tonight and Saturday. There is no performance Sunday but the second play in the series, Hotel Baltimore, opens Monday.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

It is not often a judge's sentence runs counter to an experienced probation officer's recommendation.

But it happened Thursday in Victoria provincial court when Judge William Oster suspended sentence and placed 28-year-old Derek Morrison on one year's probation.

Morrison, of no fixed address, had pleaded guilty June 21 to breaking and entering Turnbull's Pharmacy, 900 Esquimalt, and stealing cigarettes, syringes and prescription drugs.

A probation officer recommended jail term, arguing Morrison was a drug addict.

Defence lawyer Brian McAssey however, disagreed. He said Morrison was a first offender and was once a user of amphetamines and alcohol.

"He has become disillusioned with the street scene and wants to become a useful member of society," McAssey said, urging probation.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett did not oppose probation.

Commenting on the probation officer's report, Judge Oster said Morrison came across as "a decent sort of person with a great resilience . . . and not a mass of hostility and enmity."

"If only you had enough sense to stay away from drugs and alcohol," Oster said to him.

"Definitely . . . I know," Morrison replied.

Oster rejected an appeal for a discharge for Dorothy Lorraine Griffith, 49, of 539 Riel Place, who pleaded guilty to shoplifting a carton of cigarettes and two gift cards from Woolco April 8.

Instead he suspended sentence and placed her on six months probation.

A youth who said he stole eight music tapes from Woolco June 2 "to help pay off my debts" received a suspended sentence and six months probation.

Dale Ashdown, 17, of 2869 Leigh, pleaded guilty June 20.

Kirk Lyle Smith, 25, of Shawinigan Lake, was fined $200 for shoplifting a $5 pair of sunglasses from Shoppers Drugs in the Town and Country Shopping Centre on Tuesday.

Pamela Grace Marie Zemsky, 21, was fined $100 for possession of marijuana.

She was charged Wednesday after drug officers found two marijuana plants growing in a side window of her residence at 1210 North Park.

In traffic court, Judge Fred Green set $350 fines for Douglas Bruce Smith, 18, of 360 Burnside West, and Elizabeth May Hagedorn, 36, of 1703 Davie, for impaired driving.

Maritime Code Essential, Or War Likely: Britain

CARACAS (UPI) — Unless the conference on maritime law comes up with an internationally acceptable code to govern the seas the oceans may become theatres of war, Britain warned Thursday.

"Unless we can, through this conference, secure an effective and acceptable international regime, we must face the prospect of open confrontation on the high seas," David Ennals, minister of state for foreign and commonwealth affairs, told a plenary session of the third UN sea law conference.

Ennals said there could be conflicts over encroachment of traditional freedom of navigation and fishing, the present boom in offshore oil production and a potential gold rush in future exploitation of deep sea mineral deposits.

Most of the 148 countries represented at the 10-week-long conference have given either enthusiastic support or conditional acceptance of the proposed 200-mile economic zone for coastal states.

Ennals said British acceptance would depend on guarantees of fishing rights and free navigation.

Representatives of Britain, Nicaragua, Fiji, Czechoslovakia, Cuba and the Arab League spoke Thursday on the fifth day of general debate at the conference, the third attempt in 15 years to draft a new and permanent body of laws governing the use of the seas.

Cuba and the Arab League injected a political flavor. The Hanava delegate announced support for National Liberation Movement representation at the meeting and attacked the governments of South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Arab League demanded participation by the Palestinian Liberation Organization and other recognized liberation movements.

Hidden Meadows . . . A Haven Among the Throngs

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

To get away from it all, to picnic in privacy, to enjoy the semi-wilderness or to walk a tree-lined path away from the sound of traffic...

To enjoy all this you don't have to drive hundreds of miles from Victoria.

It's right on your doorstep.

"Any person who can't get away from Victoria this summer can have a real outdoors experience within the capital region," says Bob Spearling, chairman of the Victoria Out-door Club's conservation committee.

"There are some areas within the region which give you a feeling that you are miles away from civilization," he added. "It is true, space is fast disappearing. But we are not too badly off yet."

There are 12 capital regional parks, and four provincial parks in the region, excluding the Gulf Islands. In addition, three provincial marine parks are within easy reach of small boats.

Also there are other recreational areas on Crown lands. People who frequent these areas usually keep their whereabouts a secret. They are the retreats of wilderness lovers.

Some of these parks where people can enjoy good recreational experiences, such as walking and overnight camping within easy reach of the city, will be published every Friday in the Times.

For starters . . . Elk and Beaver lakes. The regional park was chosen because it is unique and situated within bus and walking distance. Its beaches may be congested during the summer months, but it also has quiet and secluded areas.

How many people, for example, have walked through the park's "Hidden Meadows"?

There are few parks in the region which can provide such diverse forms of recreation—swimming, boating, fishing, walking, riding, nature study, bird watching and picnicking.

The park includes about 600 acres of water and 700 acres of land and is visited by more than 200,000 people each year.

One of its big attractions is a five-mile trail which circles the lakes. The footpath is used by walkers, joggers and trail riders. It is also a favorite haunt of naturalists and an outdoor study area for school children in spring and fall.

Park foreman Howard Williams noted that 63 varieties of birds have been recorded in the park. A flock of Canada geese summer there. It is also home of deer, otter, mink and racoon.

This year the capital regional district has a three-man crew upgrading the trail and installing small bridges.

Some of the most fascinating areas of the park are the so-called "hidden meadows" on the east side of Beaver. They are grassy areas hidden from the Pat Bay Highway on the east by belts of trees and on the west by tall firs and spruce.

The meadows are accessible via a trail which starts near the Beaver Lake concession. It is an ideal spot for quiet family picnics and to stroll through.

The trail running through the meadows goes to Eagle Beach, on the east-and-south side of Elk Lake.

Beaver-Elk Lakes is an ideal park for family groups and a place for relaxation for business people who have some time to spare during the day.

One businessman's routine during the summer months is to walk the trail for three-quarters of an hour, have a quick dip and return to work.

Others use the trail for jogging at night, ending with a dip.

Aluminum Wiring Called Fire Threat; Widely Used in New Victoria Homes

Aluminum wiring, widely used in new homes throughout Greater Victoria because of the high cost of copper, is a fire hazard which can turn houses into "time bombs," says an Ottawa specialist.

City solicitor Jakob de Villiers has issued a writ in county court against Chew Excavating Ltd. and the company's owner, John W. Wah Chew, seeking an order to restrain the defendants from making an excessive noise on premises at 535 and 575 Gorge Road.

The affidavits to accompany the injunction, containing details of the alleged contravention, are still under preparation.

The action follows complaints from motel operators, alleging undue noise caused by heavy equipment and also by a motorcycle club using one of the locations.

There have been complaints that some guests checked out of the motels as a result of the noise.

at the points where it is joined to wall outlets because the metal "flows" or seeps from pressure or friction points.

This speeds the formation of aluminum oxide where the wire joins the fittings of a wall outlet. The oxide is an electrical resistor which can cause the outlet to overheat. The process of deterioration may take several years.

Aluminum wiring is about 40 per cent cheaper than copper wiring.

In Ottawa, Bob Jgrabek,

who owns an independent testing laboratory and is a Canadian Standards Association standards writer, believes aluminum wiring in homes is unsafe under most conditions, creating the threat of "time bombs," waiting to go up in smoke.

Wall outlets approved by the CSA for use with aluminum aren't allowed to without prior approval, McArthur said.

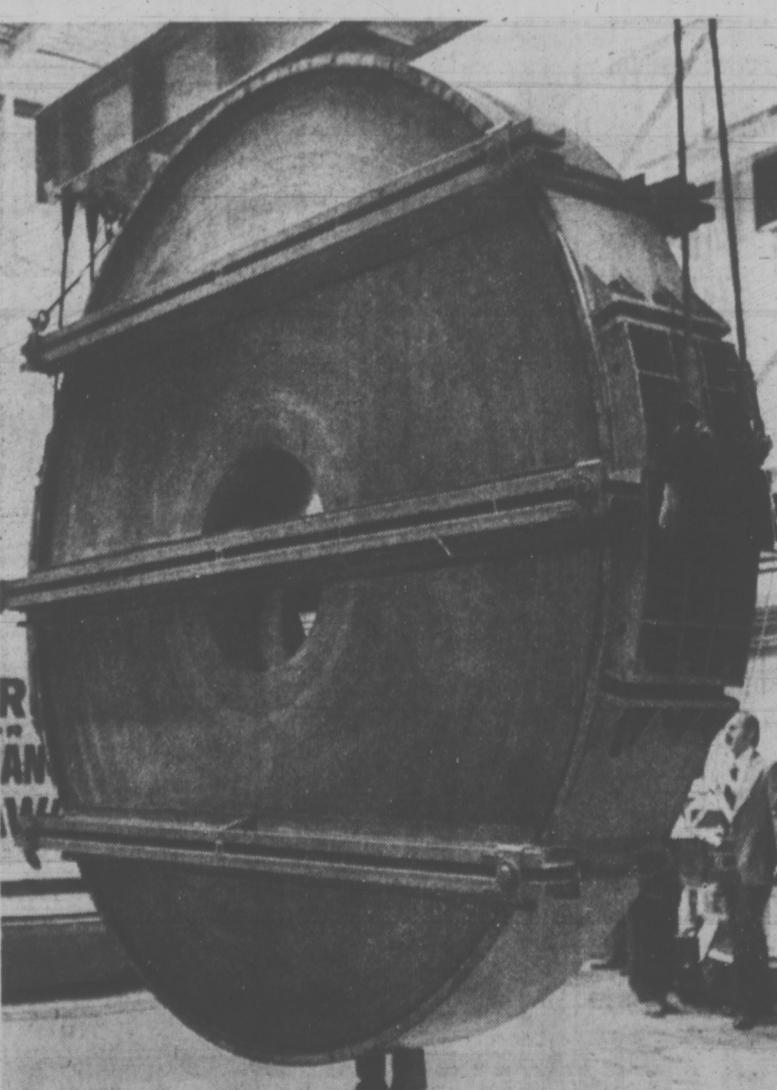

In Victoria, electrical inspector Doug Casey said his department takes "extra precautions" to ensure aluminum wiring is done according to the safety code.

The approved outlets must be used and that means there is no joining of aluminum wiring with copper, which produces a potential hazard, he said.

Aluminum wiring is "sort of frowned on" by the department, said Casey. Some electrical contractors still refuse to use it.

"I don't see aluminum as a major hazard but I much prefer copper."

End of Snarl Frees Mirror

After a political snarl of 10 months, the 15-ton telescope mirror blank, destined to become the primary mirror for the Canada-France-Hawaii telescope, today was taken from its iron crate at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain.

It had been delivered Sept. 11, 1973, but observatory director Dr. K. O. Wright explained that political negotiations between the three participating countries had delayed work on the mirror.

The uncrating ceremony was watched by a group of officials which included Dr. Bill Armstrong, deputy president of the University of British Columbia. Armstrong is chairman of the Canada-France-Hawaii Corp. which will direct the project, which Wright said would cost $20 million in 1972 dollars.

It will take about 2½ years to grind the huge 144-inch mirror blank, which is made of Cervit, a glass ceramic material which is impervious to temperature changes.

Wright said it would take a crew a whole day to lower the mirror blank into place on the grinding table at the observatory.

Wright was in Hawaii Wednesday to attend the lava-turning ceremony at the telescope site on top of the extinct Mauna Kea volcano.

Wright said Hawaii and Chile provide the best sites in the world for telescopes. Hawaii was chosen because France already has interests in a Chilean one.

The back of the mirror will be ground and polished first. Chief optician Roy Dancey said this would be done with a huge wooden tool, faced with ceramic tiles, using aluminum oxides for grinding and rare earth oxides for polishing.

Work on the front of the mirror blank should begin in October, the ceramic tiles being replaced with pyrex ones.

Dancey explained the diameter of the blur circle must be reduced to the diameter of a human hair by completion.

"This means errors must not exceed one millionth of an inch," he said.

The $800,000 mirror was bought in the United States and originally shipped to Paris but sent here from the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique de France when Canada decided to take part in the project.

Canada-France-Hawaii Corp. has 10 directors, four Canadian, four French and two from Hawaii.

The Montreal consulting engineer company, SNC, is designing the dome of the telescope.

Canada will be responsible for the mirror and the dome while France will organize the mechanical installation. The University of Hawaii will provide roads to the site.

Unruliness Forced Cutting Of Swingers' Favorite Tree

A swimmer's favorite arbutus tree along side Durrance Lake got the axe because it was creating an "unsatisfactory social situation" — unruliness.

J. A. Knox, administrative officer in the attorney-general's department, made the comment in a letter to Mike Fleming, 21, of 6999 West Saanich, who had complained about the tree being felled on orders of Sidney RCMP on June 20.

Knox's letter says the public had been subjected "improperly to the actions of irresponsible young people."

Knox also said traffic was being hampered by swimmers using the tree to swing from a rope over the adjacent road and into the water.

"It became necessary to take practical means to curtail what seemed to be unlawful activity in blocking the road, and since young people involved refused decently to comply with an authoritative request, the tree was removed."

Fleming was unavailable for comment, but his mother Mrs. Helen Fleming, who used the swing, said the rope couldn't be swung over the road because a swinger had to stand part way down a bank to reach it.

You are loyal to family, often intimidated by persons who claim to know all answers. You are affectionate, a sucker for a sob story but you also know the meaning of money. You appreciate art and could be a collector.

If you are old enough to remember the now obsolete black hearse for baby funerals in the days before we had antibiotics, or the nine-day wait for the crisis in deadly lobar pneumonia, on infected eardrums that had to be cut into to draw out the pus, or the fearful annual toll of mastoiditis and meningitis among young and old, it is hard to believe that antibiotics can be overused.

Thanks in large part to antibiotics, it is a rare baby today that succumbs to infectious diseases. The old-time preantibiotic pneumonia wards are a thing of the past. Myringotomy (incising the eardrum to drain infection from the inner ear) and mastoidectomy (cutting out infected bony tissue in the skull behind the ear, which used to be common procedures everywhere in the United States, have become rarities.

The results of this alleged overuse and abuse of antibiotics, say the critics, is a staggering and unnecessary pharmaceutical bill, in addition to hosts of patients who are unnecessarily exposed to the unpleasant and sometimes serious side-effects of antibiotics, and the emergence in the bacterial world of new breeds of bugs that are resistant to antibiotics and are thus death-dealing and untreatable.

There is no question that antibiotics which were "miracle drugs" only yesterday are used casually today, often for viral infections, including the common cold, which are not susceptible to antibiotics.

But it is the proliferation of specific antibiotics that can stop the course of specific bacterial infections that has

She'd Rather Switch Than Fight

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cathy Newsome is learning to become a railway switchman.

She was one of the two young women in a class of 21 students trained by Canadian National Railways.

After examinations, she was placed on the spare board, which means she is on 24-hour call.

Getting that far wasn't easy.

It is simply a love of trains, a feeling she picked up from her brother "who has always been involved with trains."

"It was he who was instrumental in getting me a job on the Prairie Dog Special."

The special is a non-profit project sponsored by the Vintage Locomotive Society which runs during the summer from Charleswood, a western suburb, to Headingley, a few miles further west of Winnipeg. Newsome was the official hostess on the train for three summers.

Training for the job entails switching trains in a railway yard and "the course, just completed, involved two weeks of films and lectures and a week of job assignments.

A written examination involved a 47-page rule book containing 673 railway regulations.

Newsome says her choice of career has nothing to do with women's liberation.

"In fact, I enjoy being treated like a lady," she said with a smile.

She applied for a position in October, 1972, and received an application form "but not much optimism."

"From January to March of 1973 I begged them."

Finally she was told she would be in a class by the end of May.

"I was led to believe that I would actually be accepted and it was very upsetting when I was told that improper facilities for training made it impossible."

Taking a job as a checker, she helped trainmen in the yards.

"As a checker I was using the same facilities as the trainmen, so the lack of facilities was just an excuse by the railway," she said.

cause her husband had started wearing his pants too tight, I advised her, "Tell your husband that if he wants to wear the pants in the family, he should wear 'em a little looser!"

DEAR ABBY: I am a happy-go-lucky, 25-year-old guy who is still shook by something that happened to me last week.

I went to a newstand where they sell magazines and paperback books. I got interested in a magazine and started to read it. I was standing there maybe 30 or 40 minutes, reading, when the lady who works there came up and said, "I think you've been here long enough. Either buy that magazine or put it back and leave."

Abby, I was so embarrassed I put the magazine back in the rack and left. A couple of people heard her, and I really felt cheap. Aren't those magazines put out for people to look at? I wasn't bothering anyone or making a disturbance. Did that lady have the right to tell me to leave?

—NO BRIDE

DEAR NO BRIDE: That ideal time for romance is when both parties are in the mood and have nothing else to do, but unfortunately that's not always possible. I say, shoot the ducks while they're flying — the housework will keep. And if the situation were reversed, I'd advise a husband to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: That answer you gave "Mad" at My Husband" the gal whose husband objected to her wearing a dress with a plunging neckline — sounded like something out of the Dark Ages.

You said, "Some husbands don't mind if their wives dress sexy, but if yours does don't!"

Abby, you're dead wrong. A woman is entitled to dress any way she chooses, and no one, including her husband, has the right to dictate otherwise.

Would your answer have been the same if a man had written to say that his wife objected to the way HE dressed? —BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: You bet your sweet bippy! More than one wife wrote to complain he wasn't doing it quietly and spared you the embarrassment.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.P.: Look at it this way. Hypertension is the price you pay for being a race horse instead of a cow.

Fondue is always popular, particularly with the younger set. And just like wine-and-cheese parties, fondue parties are easy for the hostess. Furthermore, they are kind to her budget, and they are lots of fun.

The four-page folder "What's New in Fondue?" shows that you can prepare fondue from almost anything, including beef, pork or chicken cubes served in a variety of tangy dunking sauces.

You will find a recipe for a palate-pleasing Beef Fondue. Everybody fries his own portion and then dips his morsels in three or four different sauces. Recipes for these are also given.

Or, you may want to surprise unexpected guests with an elegant Swiss-Shrimp Fondue. The ingredients can be kept in the pantry on your stand-by shelf. For dunking use rye or French bread.

As a dessert with a difference try caramel-orange fondue. For dunking use small whole fruit, pieces of larger fruit or cubes of pound cake.

There is also an interesting recipe for Rhubarb and Wine Fondue which can be served hot or cold. Cubes of pound cake, chiffon cake or lady finger's are suggested for dunking.

Alvarez-Welch Medical Report

By WILLIAM WELCH

This has come about on the not unreasonable assumption that a bacterial infection may be brewing as a sequel to the viral infection, or is simply not yet recognizable and the patient is better off protected than left to chance. Whether the adverse reactions to antibiotics, in such transactions are as serious or as widespread as charged is open to question, and there is not enough hard evidence to say yes or no.

Doctors in private practice in general do not seem to be running into enough such difficulties to deter them or their patients from continuing their present treatment.

But it is a fact that when antibiotics are used as a substitute for careful examination and appropriate laboratory studies, it is always chancy, often dangerous and entirely indefensible from the point of view of sound medical practice.

The current controversy should be helpful in supporting the restraint of conscientious doctors who want the best for their patients. As further studies of the problem are publicized, it should help to educate patients that they are not serving their own best interests when they telephone their busy doctor and request (or, as it sometimes seems, demand) that they have a magic pill or a shot for whatever it is they think is ailing them.

The results of this alleged overuse and abuse of antibiotics, say the critics, is a staggering and unnecessary pharmaceutical bill, in addition to hosts of patients who are unnecessarily exposed to the unpleasant and sometimes serious side-effects of antibiotics, and the emergence in the bacterial world of new breeds of bugs that are resistant to antibiotics and are thus death-dealing and untreatable.

There is no question that antibiotics which were "miracle drugs" only yesterday are used casually today, often for viral infections, including the common cold, which are not susceptible to antibiotics.

Immunizations prevent diseases like poliomyelitis, lockjaw, whooping cough and diphtheria, which used to cripple and kill thousands each year. Public health measures keep the water supply clean, thus preventing typhoid fever and parasitic bowel and liver diseases, such as amoebiasis.

But it is the proliferation of specific antibiotics that can stop the course of specific bacterial infections that has been continually slashing prices throughout the store and are replacing it with fresh stock from the Warehouse. We are selling floor stock only... We want you to see the goods you're buying... sit on it, feel it... pinch it... look it over.

Victoria Council Gives Nod To Rent-a-Date

After being assured they were not opening the door to a "house of ill repute or a bawdy house," city aldermen Thursday recommended granting a trade licence to Victoria's first escort service.

Robert S. Leeper, the applicant, told the finance committee he intended to run a strictly legitimate, respectable business, furnishing male or female escorts on request to both residents and visitors.

For a charge of $8 per hour, he explained in a brief, a person can be accompanied to a function where an escort is required, or a tourist or visiting businessman can be shown around the city.

"I am selling no sex, nor am I selling introductions," he said.

Leeper said his corps of 30 female and 15 male escorts would have to meet "very exacting standards of personal appearance, good grooming, intelligence, integrity and conversational capabilities."

And prospective clients would be left in no doubt as to the "scope of the service."

Committee chairman Ald. Tom Christie seemed to think it strange that Leeper would operate his business through a telephone answering business, rather than through a permanent office.

"Suppose I phone up your answering service for a date, how would you take it from there?" he inquired.

Apologetically, Leeper replied: "There wouldn't be anyone old enough for you..."

To Ald. Alf Hood, who noted that Leeper had been "flitting all over the place" for some years, Leeper said he would remain in Victoria as he fully expected his escort service to develop into a "very lucrative exercise."

Home Arts Show Entries Sought

With the appreciation of the older values of yesteryear in vogue these days, the Home Arts and Hobby Show is likely to be one of the most popular of building exhibits at the 1974 Pacific National Exhibition Aug. 17-Sept. 2 in Vancouver.

Keeping such values in mind, the Home Arts and Hobby Show committee is reviving the scale model contest which should produce an outstanding display of handiwork.

The scale model competition is divided into two categories: junior for those under 16, and senior for those over 17 years of age. Judging is on the basis of accuracy, originality, workmanship, difficulty and total effects.

The model classes are aircraft, armour (military vehicles), ships, cars, railroad figures (people or animals), and miscellaneous (buildings, bridges, engines). Each class, in turn, will be broken down into kit models, conversion models and scratch-built models.

In addition, there is the freelance, diorama (a model or models set in a realistic scene), collection, and best of show competitions. Conversion models are those built from kits but are high modified.

Entry deadline is noon, Aug. 12.

The rest of the hobby show is divided into four major categories: textiles, handicrafts and collections, foods, and flower arrangement and fashion show.

Included in the textile competition are laces and crochets; embroidery; knitting; quilting; rug-making; weaving and spinning; and toy-making. There are separate categories for golden-agers (over 65), hospitalized persons, and disabled veterans.

The handicrafts and collections section includes painting, graphics, metal, wood, leather- and needle-crafts, pottery, ceramics, lapidary, plastics and tie-dyeing.

The food section includes competition in cakes, breads, candies, jellies, jams, and canned foods, with separate categories for younger contestants. The aggregate winner

Good Reading for Marketplace Pawns

By SANDY SHREVE

Thinking about buying a house? A car? Life insurance, perhaps? Or what about your weekly grocery supplies?

A typical advertisement urges the consumer to turn to the company it's pushing for "dependable" service and "honest" dealings. But if you're looking for a square deal your best bet is to first use Ellen Roseman's book Consumer Beware.

Now a consumer reporter for the Toronto Star, Roseman says she "developed a powerful sympathy with the consumer movement after several years on the other side of the fence, working as a business reporter."

Those years along with extensive research have resulted in a good hard look at the workings of a marketplace designed to cheat the consumer.

"Instead of the kings of the marketplace we're supposed to be, we usually feel much more like its pawns," writes Roseman. But while she says government measures and consumer groups' actions have a long way to go before this situation is reversed, there are ways to avoid getting ripped off. What it takes is a little extra time and knowledge—and Roseman proves a good source of the latter.

Direct and to the point, she offers the best explanation available of what's going on and what consumers can do about it.

Huge department stores cluttered with thousands of poor-quality and high-priced items, many of which we don't need: expensive "Ads that give us slogans instead of useful information, ads that are misleading if not downright fraudulent; lack of competitive pricing; industries controlled by just a handful of firms. These are just some of the problems consumers face.

Roseman gives you the facts and pertinent figures about how a particular market operates and then provides a handy sum-up of what the consumer should do to come out of the shuffle with a decent deal.

Through the book she cites the perils of supermarket shopping, where packaging, confusing perishability codes and stocking procedures which place the higher priced goods in the most convenient locations, often leave the consumer helpless except to depend on well-known brand names, harboring unfounded hopes they're a fair buy.

Soaring housing costs contributed to by land speculators and municipal governments' priorities—make the market for a home as much of a risk as car dealers make getting a good car at a fair price.

And if you're looking for a dependable place to evaluate the car you're thinking of buying, forget about those diagnostic centres, says Roseman. Tests show they'll gyp you as fast as anyone.

Shopping for life insurance and even credit is riddled with hazards too—especially when you're trying to find out how much interest is involved.

By the time you head into the last lap of Roseman's book it seems that nothing is sacred any more—if it ever was. And that includes manufacturers' warranties, which "often take away more than they give. In many cases, we'd actually be better off without them."

But if Roseman sends all

You've Heard Pros And Lots of Cons

elizabeth forbes

Let me say to every woman and man, from 18 years of age on, who has the right to vote in the present federal election—Monday, July 8, is your day.

In the past weeks you have listened to the pros and cons not only from candidates in your own electoral district but from leaders of the various parties across Canada.

You have heard or you have read of promises and counter-promises, charges and counter-charges, platitudes and non-platitudes. You have also found somewhere in that welter of words, points, on which you agree and others that you reject.

Now it is up to you! So, be sure and vote! Don't let anything interfere. Don't procrastinate. Remember—it is not only a privilege, it is also a duty.

In voting there are one or two things you can do to speed up the process and to help those who will be present to help you:

By now you have most likely had a card from one candidate or another, giving the name and the address of the place where you must cast your ballot.

Look up that card. Check it carefully. And be sure you arrive at the right polling station.

Also be sure to take with you the notice filled in by the man or woman who enumerated you back in the last week of May. You've got it safely tucked away somewhere in your home, I'm certain.

Or it—in the upper right hand corner—is the number of the particular polling division (at your polling station) where you will be given a ballot paper. That number also appears on the face of your particular ballot box.

Still another point to remember is that if you're have been enthusiastic enough to support a candidate by placing bumper stickers on your car or printed signs in your windows, those stickers and signs must all come down and be put out of sight by midnight on Saturday.

That is a definite MUST and if neglected, could lead to the remote possibility of a heavy fine.

Think about these things. Get them firmly fixed in your minds. Then go ahead and vote.

Personally I'm going to say again, as I have done on other days in this column, that I hope before you do vote you will give thought to the need for more capable women down in Ottawa, both on government and opposition sides.

How you vote, of course, is your right and your privilege. The main point I wish to put across is that you DO vote.

As I said at the beginning of this column—Monday, July 8, is your day.

A DEGREE OF HUMOR

LONDON (AP)—A woman has received a master's degree from Leeds University for a thesis based on jokes like this: "What goes 99-bump?" "A centipede with a wooden leg."

Sandra McCosh of Berkeley, Calif., a student at the university's Institute of Dialect and Folk Studies for the last academic year, culled her collection of humor from English schoolchildren.

She got most of her jokes and riddles from four schools in Leeds, a Yorkshire industrial city.

McCosh found that with children, no joke is too old for retelling. Like the book title The Cliff Tragedy, by Eileen Dover.

Also included in her thesis collection were such classics as:

"What did the big chimney say to the little chimney?" "You're too young to smoke."

"Why did the vicar go to church with a machine-gun?"

"Why is a football stadium always cold?" "Because there are so many fans."

Stampede Fun Begins

CALGARY (CP) — Clear skies and sunshine greeted the opening day of the 1974 Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Thursday as the oil capital of Canada started another 10 days of fun extravaganza of chuckwagon races, rodeo, midway, food, parade and the warm western "howdy pardner" smile.

"The greatest outdoor show on earth," as organizers called it, was offering a new point of view from a $14-million race-track-grandstand complex, centre of activities at Stampede time. This face-lift, officials hoped, would help bring in the one-million attendance figure.

However, the first-day gate of 65,964 was considerably less than the number of 78,604 who visited Stampede Park the opening day of last year.

The theme of this year's celebrations is salute to aviation, and a wide variety of aviation equipment, including the first Canadian plane that flew and the Apollo 7 lunar module, was on display.

Lawyers Disbarred

EDMONTON (CP) — The Law Society of Alberta today announced two of its members have been disbarred because of irregularities in their trust accounts.

Michael Ryan and M. Daniel Thachuk, both of Edmonton, were disbarred. H. G. Field, society president, announced.

Field declined to elaborate on the reasons for the disbarments.

River 'Dangerous'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Record snowfalls last winter over more than 50,000 square miles of Manitoba and northwestern Ontario have resulted in near-record flows on the Winnipeg River this summer.

The Winnipeg River begins at Lake of the Woods, where the water level now stands at 1,061.3 feet above sea level, and empties into Lake Winnipeg, 475 miles to the northwest and more than 350 feet lower than the headwaters.

The Winnipeg River now is flowing at three times its normal level and is described by a Manitoba Water Resources official as "a dangerous river now."

Meat Men Stall

EDMONTON (CP) — The 2,500 workers employed by the three major meat-packing companies in Alberta will not return to work until they have a new contract, a spokesman for the Canadian Food and Allied Workers Union said Thursday night.

Norm LeClair, union business agent, said in an interview "there is plenty of time before Monday to reach a settlement."

LeClair's comment followed a 45-minute meeting between the union and Premier Peter Lougheed and several cabinet ministers. The premier urged the union officials to ask the workers, who have been locked out since early June, to return to work Monday.

Insecticide Warning

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Labor Minister Gordon Snyder has urged persons using the insecticide furadan to control grasshoppers to control proper safety procedures.

There have been 83 cases of accidental poisoning in connection with use of the chemical during the last three weeks, Snyder said. In all cases, the victims recovered fully.

Church Wealth Draining

YORK, England (AP) — Inflation is draining away the wealth of the Church of England, but this enforced poverty may lead to spiritual enrichment, the next Archbishop of Canterbury said today.

Dr. Donald Coggan, the current archbishop of York, who succeeds Dr. Michael Ramsey in November as spiritual leader of the church and of the worldwide Anglican Communion, cited a newspaper editorial that said Britain is facing an "inflationary disaster."

"These are grave and weighty words, and we neglect them at our peril," he told the General Synod of the church at the opening of its summer session.

"That the church in the coming years will be stripped of much of its possessions through the exigencies of the economic situation is almost certain. But must this be regarded as an unmitigated disaster?"

"Could it not be a case of God stripping His church for action? May it not be a means of revelation, a call to hear what the spirit is saying to the churches?"

The archbishop decried selfishness, the lack of a sense of vocation in many jobs, and an educational system which overdevelops the acquisitive and competitive instinct, rather than eliciting the wide variety of gifts which can be found in any given classroom full of children."

A number of churches in England have had to sell their gold and silver plate in recent months, both to maintain their parish work and the church buildings. The treasures are legacies and selling them has caused much controversy.

Some clergymen are agitating publicly for sizable increases in their low salaries. The financial officials of the church say the pay can only be raised by the laity digging deeper into their pockets for their parish priests.

Resource Problems At Mica Dam Outlined

Two major resource management studies — covering the Purcell Mountain and Mica reservoir regions of the province — were made public Thursday by Resources Minister Bob Williams.

The Purcell Range study, prepared by University of B.C. forestry professor Dr. Alan Chambers, was submitted to the government in January and much of the information has already been made public and many recommendations acted upon.

But the study was not released, said Williams, because areas of information and data were not always correct and have been reworked in conjunction with government departments.

Continuous resource inventories were also recommended and community involvement in planning was urged.

The Environment and Land-Use Committee concurs with these major recommendations and in response to other recommendations in the report has called a moratorium on forest road construction.

Allotment of additional cutting rights in certain areas has stopped, said Williams, and the forest service is recalculating allowable cuts throughout the Purcells, which cover the southeastern corner of the province.

Williams said this study, unlike the Purcell report, is being released to the public for information and comment prior to consideration by the government's Environment and Land Use Committee.

Major recommendations in that report include:

A conservative approach to the future management of the area's forests;

More intensive management of the forests and the introduction of secondary processing;

Forestry and tourism in the area be managed to encourage continued development of Golden and Valemount communities; study of Northern Vancouver Island is expected to be completed soon.

Regional co-ordinators be hired to chair regional resource committees for resource management.

Roll back prices

Communist candidates are pledged to work for a program geared to the needs of the working people.

Addressing themselves directly to the urgent problems faced by Canadians, these Communist candidates will make the best possible representatives at Ottawa. Together with others who are concerned with rapidly rising costs, with poverty amidst plenty, with beginning the process of regaining Canada's independence, Communists in Parliament will provide a strong alternative to the parties of big business.

The Communist Party platform is an anti-monopoly platform. It is a platform for the people.

- Roll back prices on food, clothing, housing and fuel.
- Enact an Excess Profit Tax to curb monopoly.
- Increase the basic Federal Pension to $250 at age 60.
- Exempt all incomes below $8000 (families) $5000 (single).
- A crash program of 300,000 new low cost housing units.

Our appeal to you in this election is to vote Communist, elect a large progressive group to parliament, help shift politics to the left! Working men and women need their own representatives—in this election we need to break the hold of the big corporations at Ottawa.

MAGUIRE HAS LEFT TO CIRCLE ISLAND

NANAIMO (CP) — Fred Maguire, 33, left Thursday in his attempt to circle Vancouver Island in a bathtub.

Maguire set a record last year when he tubbed to Seattle in slightly more than 33 hours.

The tub is powered by a stock six horsepower motor. He has 60 gallons of gasoline for both the tub and its escort, and two spare motors. He expects the trip will take seven to 10 days.

Impossible to Avoid Riot: West Van Report

WEST VANCOUVER (CP)

Crashers at a house party fracas here June 8 in which a policeman lost an eye found it virtually impossible to avoid a confrontation with police, says a report on the incident.

The report, by West Vancouver deputy police chief Eric Hallam, said the confrontation might have been avoided if police had attended the party earlier when there were fewer, more sober, people there.

It also suggested that if police vehicles had been parked out of sight, the revellers might have dispersed "with less incident."

Hallam's report noted that some people attend this type of party for the purpose of baiting police and said that under these cases a confrontation cannot always be avoided.

The report said that although there had been suggestions that one or two policemen may have hit people improperly with riot sticks, there did not appear to be any witnesses to this.

Hallam, who was acting chief at the time of the incident, also announced his resignation from the force. Although the deputy chief would give no reason for his resignation, the chairman of the West Vancouver Police Board indicated it was probably because he was recently passed over in the selection of a new chief.

NEW WESTMINSTER — A man who allegedly shot a 17-year-old New Westminster girl and prompted a Canada-wide search 15 months ago has surrendered to police.

Noel Norman Glen Gary Cowie, 26, of Ruskin, appeared in New Westminster provincial court and was remanded for psychiatric examination by July 17.

Deborah Robertson, was shot in the right hip with a .22-calibre pistol while waiting for a bus when she refused to enter a man's car. She was treated in hospital at that time and later released.

VANCOUVER — Leaders of the two pulp and paper workers' unions Thursday accused the International Wood-

Northern Sports Fishing Threatened

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sport fishing of great value to the economy of northern B.C. is threatened by industrialization, a federal government research economist said in a report released this week.

The report by David Reid, based on two years of study, said an urgent need for careful management of the water resources of northern B.C. exists if fish are to avoid being wiped out as industrial development intensifies.

The report was undertaken because of the large-scale economic expansion planned for the area in the next 10 years. The federal and provincial governments are involved in a $325 million development scheme expected to generate about 35,000 new jobs.

Much of the area studied by Reid would be affected by the Kemano II hydroelectric power project, the subject of an environmental study by B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

William Sinclair, chief of economics and sociology for the northern branch of the fisheries service, said the study will be of "critical importance" when the social and economic consequences of Kemano II are examined.

"There are too many examples elsewhere on this continent where economic development has been needlessly (carried out) at the expense of environmental values," Sinclair said.

The region would benefit from direct spending by non-residents involved in sport fishing an average of $773,512 a year which could be translated into 70 fulltime jobs.

The study did not include estimates of spending by resident fishermen.

Deterioration in sport fish stocks, provincial government attitudes toward non-Canadian participation in B.C.'s recreational resources and continental energy shortages, were described by Reid as major threats to the sport fishing industry in the district of Nechoah Lakes.

He said some lakes close to Prince George are probably overfished and, if this city continues to grow, increased activity by fishermen "may similarly threaten Francois Lake."

He said salmon in the region are being exploited at a

Linen Talks Break Off

Negotiations in the month-long strike against Canadian Linen Supply, 947 North Park, broke down Wednesday, Victoria Labor Council was told.

"The company says no way, that's it," Marion Kuplak of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union told council delegates Wednesday night.

So negotiations have broken off completely and it seems it will be a while before we are back at the bargaining table."

Asked by one delegate if the two sides are "miles apart" she replied "yes, I'd say so."

Basic rate of pay in the old contract was $2.92 an hour. She told the council the union was seeking $1 an hour in the first year of a new agreement and we'd talk from that after one year."

The council was also told that Canadian Linen is moving some laundry in and out of the plant during the night but there was no full-scale operation behind picket lines.

The strike involves 57 employees.

The B.C. Federation of Labor has declared all products and services of Canadian Linen "hot" and the labor council was told that Empress Hotel workers have decided not to wear Canadian Linen uniforms and to refuse to wash them.

200 DEVOUR LARGEST PIZZA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — They came, they bought, they ate in two hours what was billed as the world's largest pizza.

"It's all gone. It went up in about two hours," said Brad Louis, assistant manager of a pizza parlor.

About 200 persons attacked the pizza which measured 30 feet 10 inches across. It consisted of 471 pounds of dough, 221.9 pounds of tomato sauce, 290.5 pounds of cheese and 75.1 pounds of pepperoni.

It yielded about 6,000 norm-sized slices that were sold for 40 cents each. That adds up to $2,400. Sponsors of show—a net profit of about $2,100 for the Clintonville Residents Association, a north-side Columbus neighborhood group.

Putting the pizza together was handled with military precision by nine pizza parlors.

Motor-Made Tweed Sparks Scottish Row

Special to the Times

ABERDEEN — There is a scene in the 1950 classic film "The Battle of the Sexes" in which Peter Sellers drives up to a Highland croft with an American efficiency expert who is a woman.

Sellers, playing a crafty old executive in an old-fashioned Edinburgh cloth-weaving firm, is fulfilling the request of the woman hired to modernize his firm to see "the factory."

As she staggers back aghast at the sight of a man and wife operating a hand-loom, Sellers slyly observes that they have about another 150 crofts to visit before she sees the whole "factory."

Time has stood still in the Scottish Hebrides since that film was made.

Each time a Canadian buys a Harris tweed jacket in a department store the famous orb stamp on the inside pocket tells him that he has bought an article whose cloth was woven on a hand loom in a croft in the outer Hebrides.

The new generation of weavers is apparently less prepared to ignore the fact that the industrial revolution has taken place.

Kenny MacLennan, 26, who is one of the five suspended, said:

About 80 per cent of the Harris tweed woven today on this island is woven with the aid of a motor.

It takes a day-and-a-half to weave an average length of Harris tweed which must be hand-woven in the homes of islanders in the outer Hebrides.

The real tragedy is that the government is venturing into the U.S. money market at a time when we are experiencing the highest interest rates in history," he said.

"If it is really impossible to secure funds within the province, then they should certainly be within Canada," he said.

Meanwhile, he said, the NDP government is investing in common stocks "tying up the people's capital in a socialist experiment."

He said Barrett bragged several months ago about the profits he made for the B.C. government in stock investments, but now that the stock

New Act On Weights

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has proclaimed the new Weights and Measures Act and its regulations to be in force Aug. 1, 1974.

The act updates existing legislation by recognizing changes in business practices and advances in technology, such as the increasing use of electronic weighting devices which record and print weight and price on packaged commodities.

A statement by Consumer Affairs Minister Herb Gray states it also will lay a firm foundation for conversion to the metric system by defining all quantities whether pounds, gallons or feet in terms of internationally-recognized metric units.

The act also makes tampering with or resetting odometers on automobiles a federal offence, even if the tampering is done in one province and the car sold in another.

The real tragedy is that the government is venturing into the U.S. money market at a time when we are experiencing the highest interest rates in history," he said.

"If it is really impossible to secure funds within the province, then they should certainly be within Canada," he said.

Meanwhile, he said, the NDP government is investing in common stocks "tying up the people's capital in a socialist experiment."

He said Barrett bragged several months ago about the profits he made for the B.C. government in stock investments, but now that the stock prices have gone down he has heard nothing about the losses.

"He will be known in history as the financial gambler of B.C."

Under the new payment plan, monthly allowances for widows will be raised to $275 from $120, for dependent children to $45 from $35 and for orphaned children to $60 from $45.

A lump sum payment to widows and foster-mothers will go to $400 from $300.

NDP CREDIBILITY?

"Any practical, workable policy of anti-inflation restraint has to affect BOTH SIDES OF THE EQUATION, income as well as prices. I do not see that what I have said should upset Mr. Lewis. I am on record as supporting price and income controls as long as four years ago."

—N.D.P. Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, June 7, 1974.

"Selective price controls should be linked to selective income controls. I am not simply talking about wages... all incomes should be controlled including professional fees, profits, rents and dividends for both companies and individuals."

—N.D.P. Premier Allen Blakeney of Saskatchewan, Feb. 25, 1974.

David Lewis supports only the popular half of the equation—Only Price Controls.

This is—an unworkable proposal,
—a misleading approach.

BOB STANFIELD FACES THE ISSUE SQUARELY:

Hydro Hike Tied to Bond: Bennett

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit leader Bill Bennett says B.C. Hydro rates are being increased as a condition of a possible $100 million bond issue financed in Boston.

In an interview, Bennett said he had no direct proof of the allegation, but said it was a logical assumption "based on my knowledge of the money market and the conditions of financial rates."

Earlier, Premier Dave Barrett said $100 million needed to finance the site one power project on the Peace River would be obtained either through a public bond issue or through a syndicate headed by the First Boston Corporation.

"To borrow the $100 million the government had to make a commitment to the First Boston Corporation to increase rates," Bennett said.

The real tragedy is that the government is venturing into the U.S. money market at a time when we are experiencing the highest interest rates in history," he said.

"If it is really impossible to secure funds within the province, then they should certainly be within Canada," he said.

Meanwhile, he said, the NDP government is investing in common stocks "tying up the people's capital in a socialist experiment."

He said Barrett bragged several months ago about the profits he made for the B.C. government in stock investments, but now that the stock

Allowances Raised

OTTAWA (CP) — Workers' compensation benefits for merchant sailors and their dependents have been increased by cabinet order retroactive to July 1.

Under the new payment plan, monthly allowances for widows will be raised to $275 from $120, for dependent children to $45 from $35 and for orphaned children to $60 from $45.

A lump sum payment to widows and foster-mothers will go to $400 from $300.

Cycle Makers Asked to Use Safe Standards

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Standards Association (CSA) has issued a draft of recommended safety standards for bicycles which it hopes will be accepted by bicycle manufacturers.

The standards apply to bicycles that reach a minimum height of 25 inches from the seat-post to the ground. They do not apply to children's bicycles or specially designed racing bicycles used for competition.

The CSA suggests size requirements for various bicycle parts in an attempt to supply uniform standards.

Other recommendations deal with seating position, chain guard protective devices, pedal placements, and other related specifications. The CSA also sets standards for the placing of colored reflectors on bicycles.

Under the standards, all bicycles would be equipped with rear, pedal and side reflectors. The rear reflector would be red and placed in prominent view for any vehicle approaching from the rear.

The pedal and side reflectors would be amber.

Worker Killed Near Tahsis

James Frederick McDonald, 21, of Tahsis, a construction worker, was killed Thursday when caught by a turning crane and crushed against a road retaining wall at Chilko Bay near Tahsis.

He was an employee of Wilpar Construction of Kamsack River.

Audi Cutback

NECKARSULM, West Germany (Reuter) — Audi announced Wednesday that it would lay off 19,000 workers for two weeks this month following a fall in sales and increases in stocks of unsold cars. The Volkswagen subsidiary sold 172,000 vehicles in the first six months of this year, a drop of nearly 25 per cent on 1973.

Four Jokes and the Message

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Four hundred supporters rallied to NDP's Tommy Douglas Thursday for an oratorical shot in the arm, pulling out wallets to dump their contributions into the campaign funds.

There were no crowding throngs, no bands, a scanty group of straw-hat cheerleaders, and few waited at the door of Royal Oak Junior secondary school to shake the hand of the NDP "statesman" on his arrival.

Only one elderly lady had perched herself at the entrance, "just to tell you Mr.

Douglas that your father ate dinner with my father at our house back in Saskatchewan."

A harried handshake, and the spry, sharp-suited Douglas headed for local candidates Peter James (Victoria) and Peter Smart (Esquimalt-Saanich) where proffered hands were waiting to meet their party's "politician."

The Cowichan and The Islands spellbinder took the stage armed with four jokes.

"There were these four Newfies, you see . . ." was replaced by hit-em-hard economic problems outlined by one of few who dared to list his occupation as "politician" on nomination papers.

He banged out the NDP's stated policies and solutions, spelled out excess profits tax, interest rates and the two-price system as simple as two-plus four equals six; and slammed the Liberals and Conservatives.

"They fight little sham battles crossing swords but when the interest of big corporations are at stake, they join ranks."

A distinctive daisy spouting out his lapel, Douglas talked in terms of "home" fuel prices: "Let me show you just how it works; there's no pipe-dream about it."

GROUND, AIR ATTACK ON ONTARIO FIRE

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario ministry of natural resources launched a massive ground and air attack Thursday on a fire that has destroyed about $27 million worth of timber near Dryden in northwestern Ontario.

The Dryden fire, covering about 37,000 acres, was one of 62 burning in the region east of the Manitoba border Thursday, down from 74 active fires Wednesday.

The fire near Dryden and three near Red Lake were among 13 reported out of control. A total of about 150,975 acres has been reported burned in the northwestern region this year.

More Space Evidence Backs Hole Theory

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)

Astronomers who claimed a year ago to have discovered a mysterious "black hole" in space say they may have found a second one, further evidence that such things exist.

In theory, a black hole is the final stage of a dying star several times larger than the sun.

As the star collapses into itself, becoming smaller and smaller, its mass compact and its gravity becomes so strong that surrounding matter is pulled into it.

Since the gravity is so strong that not even light can escape, the dying star appears to be a black area in a field of stars — hence the name "black hole."

Using data from an astronomy satellite scientists of the Centre for Astrophysics here say they have detected radiation from a star they call Circinus X-1 with characteristics similar to the suspected black hole they discovered last year.

These objects are fascinating to scientists because theory says the normal rules of time and space do not apply within the condition of a black hole.

Prof. Richard Giacconi of Harvard University, leader of the team claiming the discoveries, says the existence of a second black hole is important in arguing that the objects exist.

ONLY RESTING RESCUERS TOLD

The canoeists weren't in trouble; they were just resting after paddling from Ucluelet to some.

Thursday evening a person walking along Dallas Road thought that a canoe with two men was in trouble . . . only resting. They said they started their journey from Ucluelet. Their destination is not known.

A pilot boat spotted them on Trial. The canoeists, who were not identified, told coast guard they were not in trouble . . . only resting. They said that they started their journey from Ucluelet. Their destination is not known.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Dummy's queen of clubs should not have been put up on the opening lead of the club jack. Admittedly, West might have been leading the jack from some K-J-10 combination, in which case the queen would have won the trick. But by playing low instead, declarer would have guaranteed his contract.

South should have recognized that he was going to finesse in diamonds in such a manner that if the finesse lost, it would lose only to East. Hence a low club should have been played from dummy at trick one, South capturing the trick with his ace. The dummy would then have possessed the Q-7 of clubs.

The diamond finesse would now be taken, losing to East's king. No matter what the set-up was in clubs (hypothetically) — whether East or West possessed the club king — the board's guarded queen of clubs would prevent the defenders from cashing more than the club king.

Hangar Doors Too Low

MONTREAL (CP) — The hangar at the downtown Victoria short-takeoff-and-landing (STOL) airport appeared just fine until Airtransit workers recently tried to roll one of the carrier's Twin Otters inside.

The plane's tail was seven inches too high to pass through the door frame of the hangar especially designed for the Twin Otters — 11-passenger turbo-props that will provide STOL service between Montreal and Ottawa beginning July 24.

"It's not our fault," said an Airtransit spokesman. "The hangar was designed by the ministry of transport." The same problem has been encountered at the company's Ottawa hangar.

Maintenance men at both centres have been parking the planes with their tails sticking outside the hangar door.

When a plane has to be put inside, its nose is pushed up enough to allow the tail to slip under the door.

"It's just one of those things," said Don Button, of Ottawa, manager of the STOL project. However, the trouble now is being corrected at Ottawa and the Montreal hangar is to be fixed soon.

Solar Storm

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The sun is experiencing a solar storm in an area as big as the planet Jupiter and high and low-energy particles from the storm are penetrating the earth's atmosphere, environmental scientists report.

Carl A. Posey director of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's space environmental laboratory, says the high-energy particles would produce minor deterioration of radio communications across the polar regions.

He said the low energy particles would enter the earth's environment today producing minor geomagnetic storms.

The solar storm has grown to an area of 1,100 million square miles and is the largest since August, 1972, when huge solar flares were reported.

The Argentine After Peron: Maybe Isabel Can Carry On

By MORTR OSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES — The people of Argentina, after saying farewell to the man who shaped their lives for three decades, now look toward the future. The prospects are grim.

The most optimistic view is that Juan D. Peron's widow and successor, Isabel, may be able to keep order and continue Peron's economic programs.

The more pessimistic predictions are for crisis or chaos.

Argentina, despite Peronist gains during the last year, is in bad shape. Meat sales are way off. The foreign debt is $7 billion, and the internal debt mounts weekly.

Steaks are hard to find in a country with twice as many cows as people. Eggs are often gone from the market, and factories stall for lack of rubber and steel.

The political situation is, in Argentine idiom, "a bag of tomatos."

Peron, who died Monday at 78, often said he could not be expected to perform miracles.

But the status quo alone is a blow to the country that in the early 1900s was rivalling the United States for hemispheric leadership.

He said the low energy particles would enter the earth's environment today producing minor geomagnetic storms.

The solar storm has grown to an area of 1,100 million square miles and is the largest since August, 1972, when huge solar flares were reported.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Juan Peron is dead. His magnetism kept Argentina together despite many forces tearing it apart. Now his 43-year-old widow heads the country, inexperienced in politics and without a personal following. Here is what might be in store.

All political parties and the armed forces have promised to respect the legal succession.

But the movement Mrs. Peron heads is splintered into extremes that hate one another bitterly.

Scores have been murdered within Peronism during the year, not counting more than 100 killed on the day Peron returned from exile, June 20, 1973.

Peron tried to expel the radical left from his movement, but they would not go.

Now leftist leaders maintain they are the heirs to the whole movement.

Right-wing Peronists have applied violence to weed out "Marxist infiltrators," a loose phrase to cover a wide range of enemies.

"Left" generally covers the 250,000-member Peronist youth, with its urban guerrilla wings and liberal students.

They want revolution, of some form or another, and a change in social structures.

The "right" takes in the huge labor movement, with shift-workers who want a fatter pay envelope and bureaucrats after more power. It includes many businessmen and politicians who oppose radical change.

If leaders of the left feel their power slipping, they may go back on the streets with the same terrorist tactics that helped force the military regime to allow the Peronists back in power.

The day after Peron was elected last September, they machine-gunned labor leader Jose Rucci, one of the most heavily guarded men in the country.

On top of the Peronism violence, a hard-core band of professional terrorists, the People's Revolutionary Army (ERP) is pressing a guerrilla war on those they consider exploiters, Argentine and foreign.

They extracted a $14.2-million ransom from the U.S. oil firm Exxon and then kidnapped a German auto-executive. They still hold an Argentine colonel.

The ERP did not like Peron, and there is no reason to think they will like Mrs. Peron any better. If the ERP cannot overthrow the government, it can certainly frighten away foreign investment.

Argentina is desperately in need of political stability, economists say.

Political scientists maintain that it needs economic growth. Many feel that only a man like Peron could bring about both.

There is no one around like Peron.

'Illegal' Acts By ICBC Hit

KAMLOOPS (CP) — An insurance official charged Thursday that the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia is getting away with actions that drew federal anti-combines response when a similar program was attempted by private insurance firms.

Ian Mair, chairman of the Insurance Bureau of Canada, told the national convention of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce that government insurance in three NDP-ruled provinces is producing many unhappy results.

"A few years ago a group of insurance managers in Vancouver banded together and agreed not to send any business to body shops which charged more than a certain rate-per-hour for repairs," he said.

"Within days the federal anti-combines people were on the scene with cease-and-desist orders.

"That kind of pressure was termed illegal," said Mair.

Vancouver Prices Highest

Vancouver shoppers paid the highest prices in the country for food last month and found their grocery bill 50 per cent higher than it was a year earlier.

A Canadian Press survey of 17 standard food items put the market basket value in Vancouver at $18.02 in June, compared with $17.61 in May and $12 in June, 1973.

While Victoria is not included in the survey, it is generally conceded that grocery prices here are marginally higher than Vancouver.

The nation-wide survey showed sirloin at $2.35 a pound, cod at $1.39 and butter at 93 cents a pound were more expensive in Vancouver than in any other city checked.

Tomatoes rose in price by 30 cents, to 79 cents, and apples were up to 45 cents from 29 the previous month. A mid-month panic by cattlemen, brought on by the fear that a ban on cattle imports from the U.S. might be lifted, caused wholesale beef prices to drop. But Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan cut the panic short and stopped the price drop by pledging to hold firm with import restrictions despite U.S. government threats of reprisal.

Apples and potatoes in some centres increased in price with the introduction to the market of more expensive Delicious apples and new potatoes. Produce prices, however, showed signs of levelling off as domestic stocks replaced imported goods on the shelves.

In Montreal, the price of bread was down 13 cents to 31 cents a loaf while peas dropped 11 cents to 35 cents a pound and sugar fell three cents to $1.79. Potatoes also cost less but sirloin increased 30 cents to $2.19 a pound and pork rose 10 cents to $1.55. The market basket price at Montreal was $16.23, down 73 cents from the May bill but up $3.13 from the previous June.

Halifax beef prices were up 14 cents at $1.99; coffee rose 24 cents to $1.33 and sugar

Canada Near Top of World In Price Race

PARIS (CP) — Canada showed the second-highest increase in consumer prices in May of any of the 24 countries with membership in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

But the Paris-based OECD said today that for the overall 12 months ending in May, the Canadian increase was less than the average for the 24 countries.

In May Canadian consumer prices increased by 1.7 per cent over the previous month. Switzerland was highest with an increase of 1.8 per cent. Prices in the United States rose by 1.1 per cent.

These rate comparisons produced by the OECD are not seasonally adjusted and do not by themselves provide a comparison of actual prices in the various member countries.

However, they do provide an indication whether price pressures are increasing or declining. The OECD said that compared with April, the May trend suggested a significant slowdown in consumer price increases in Japan partly for seasonal reasons and in The Netherlands, Austria, Finland, Spain and Britain.

"Accelerations were noted particularly in Canada and the United States," the organization said.

It estimated that the overall inflation rate for member countries for May exceeded more than one per cent for the sixth consecutive month.

In the 12 months ending in May, the Canadian increase of 11 per cent compared with the average of 12.5 per cent for the 24 countries.

Among OECD members, West Germany enjoyed the lowest annual inflation rate for the year ending May 30 with 7.2 per cent.

The next lowest were Sweden, Luxembourg and Norway, all with 8.6 per cent.

Iceland scored the highest inflation rate for the 12 month period with 32.2 per cent.

Next came Greece with 31 per cent and Portugal with 26.5 per cent.

May increases for the countries cited with April's rises in brackets: Canada 1.7 (0.7); United States 1.1 (0.6); Switzerland 1.8 (0.6); Greece 1.5 (1.1); Japan 0.3 (2.7); Netherlands 0.4 (1.4); Austria 0.3 (1.2); Finland 1.0 (2.5); Spain 1.2 (2.2); Britain 1.4 (3.4).

The latest available figure for Iceland was a rise of 2.8 per cent for the first quarter of 1974, the OECD added.

Riot Fills Bangkok's Streets

Times News Services

BANGKOK — Gunfire rattled throughout the Chinese section of Bangkok today on the third successive day of riots which have forced the government to proclaim a state of emergency and sent paramilitary troops backed by tanks into the streets.

The death toll from three nights of fighting neared 30.

Prime Minister Sanya Thammakas conferred in emergency debate with his cabinet and King Bhumibol Adulyadej, then reported that two Chinese motorcycle gangs were behind the violence.

Sanya said he does not plan to impose a curfew, but urged residents to stay home.

It was similar civil violence in October last year which triggered the downfall of the old military government and led to Sanya's rise to power.

The violence reflects long-simmering resentment by the city's young Chinese against Thai police. "The people here just hate policemen," said one police officer assigned to Chinatown.

Marine Gas Price Up 8 Cents

The energy crisis has turned the tide on boat owners who are now paying at least eight cents more for marine gas at Greater Victoria marinas.

"It's the first price rise in God knows how long," reported a spokesman for Van Isle Marina where a gallon of regular marine gas was hiked by oil companies to 52 cents from 44 cents.

At Canoe Cove Marina a similar increase from 41.8 cents to 52 cents is now in store for purchasers, but a spokesman said there have been few critical comments from boat owners.

Boaters, especially from the States, are just glad marine gas doesn't cost as much as auto gas," he said.

The average auto gas price at service stations is quoted at 62 cents a gallon, and the difference has been attributed to the 15-cent-a-gallon road tax, compared to a tax on marine gas at three cents a gallon.

Some boat owners, however, claim marine gas has gone up to 57.9 cents a gallon, almost equal to the price of auto gas, when boat petrol was always been about 12 cents cheaper.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Between 300 and 400 of the miners who attended demonstrations in Victoria protesting the Mineral Royalties Act last month had their expenses paid by a committee working in conjunction with the Majority Movement (MM).

Norman Higdon, 21, a political science student who had worked three weeks for Noranda Mines in Granisle when the demonstration came up, said he went along for the ride.

"What everybody said was 'what a marvellous way to come to Vancouver,'" Higdon said. "They were just here for a god time, that's all."

Movement officials readily admitted Thursday that the Save Our Jobs Committee, a group the movement helped set up and which in turn organized the demonstration, paid miners' air fares, bus fares, and motel and food bills.

"There was sure as hell nothing secret about it," said

MM treasurer Tom Stewart, who signed the expense cheques. "You can't pay expenses for that many people and keep it secret."

Organizers say about 700 persons attended two days of demonstrations in front of the legislature June 20 and 21, most on the second day. The act was passed on the first day of the demonstrations.

Stewart said the total bill for organizing the demonstration so far stands at "just under $44,000," although this

Shutting, FIR Firm

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America went to Forest Industrial Relations to seek better contract settlement Thursday night but apparently came away empty-handed.

No one was available for comment today on the meeting which lasted until almost midnight at the Bayside Inn, Vancouver.

The IWA negotiating committee was meeting at a secret location in Vancouver this morning to decide its next course of action.

Although an official strike has not been called, more and more plants in the Lower Mainland were closing down as workers began unofficial strikes.

On Vancouver Island, a majority of the 14,000 IWA workers have been off the job since the last contract expired June 14.

Sooke Forest Products closed this morning when unofficial pickets appeared at the sawmill, which employs 300 men. The Alberni-Pacific Division sawmill in Port Alberni, with 650 men, also closed but the 300-worker Honeymoon Bay sawmill reopened.

Altogether, about 12,000 of the 14,000 Island IWA members were off work.

It was not known if the IWA and FIR negotiators were planning to meet again but it was understood that FIR, bargaining agency for 120 companies, reiterated to the IWA negotiators that its last offer was a final one.

The official result of the IWA membership vote on the proposed contract showed rejection by 6,941 votes to 6,666, a majority of 275. But 5,300 votes were disqualified, including the entire Port Alberni local, because members failed to sign for their ballots.

The coast IWA section represents 32,000 loggers and millworkers. The turnout in the vote was 59 per cent, or 42 per cent if the disqualified ballots are excluded.

The contract offer was recommended by the coast negotiating committee of the union and, by six of the nine local executive boards. Two locals, Victoria and New Westminster, recommended rejection and Courtenay did not make a recommendation.

The offer included a pay raise of 12 per cent, with a minimum increase of 65 cents an hour, a number of rate revisions and a cost-of-living clause in a one-year agreement. Present wages range from $4.45 an hour for laborers to $7 an hour for head sawyers.

In Port Alberni, IWA financial secretary Bill Hawkes said today the entire local ballot was disqualified because 24 showed up without signatures in the vote held at a mass meeting.

If the vote was conducted operation by operation, instead of a single mass meeting, only those operations which contained spoiled ballots would have been disqualified, he said.

The local union isn't happy and that the mistake was made and that the ballots had to be thrown out but it didn't make any difference in the total ballot because this local had rejected the contract by a small majority," he said.

The earlier unofficial vote count showed the contract rejected by 83 votes.

MAINLAND MAN SHOT TO DEATH

VANCOUVER (CP) — One man was dead and two were in hospital following an early-morning shooting incident in the city's south side early today.

Police said the incident occurred at the Rayonier Silver Tree lumber division at about 1 a.m.

Preliminary reports indicated that two men were leaving a shift at the Rayonier plant when a third man rushed up and fired shots. A scuffle followed in which one man died.

The name of the dead man was not released, but Barshan Dhillion, 26, and Mukund Bai, 22, were in Vancouver General Hospital in fair condition following the incident.

B.C. Fruit Boycott Planned

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER — Mainland stores were warned Thursday their stores will be boycotted and picketed if they sell B.C. apples and pears.

The mainland branch of SPEC issued the warning because the provincial department of agriculture refuses to halt use of herbicides 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T and 2,4,5-TP.

Leader of the SPEC protest, Mariam Doucette, says the effects of the herbicide are cumulative, dangerous to pregnant women and can lead to malformation of babies.

She said posters are being prepared and the boycott will be launched in two or three weeks when the apples first appear in grocery stores.

The herbicides are used to delay premature dropping of the fruit before harvest.

Derrick Mallard of Victoria, president of the Citizens' Association to Save the Environment (CASE), said his members don't plan to participate in the boycott.

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian Victoria Cross auctioned today at Sotheby's was bought by Spinks, the London coin and medal dealers, on behalf of the Stephen B. Roman Foundation of Toronto. The price paid was 6,000 pounds ($13,800), nearly twice the previous world record for a VC.

MONTREAL (CP) — A 29-year-old man who said he had set fire to himself at a downtown intersection during the noon rush hour Thursday.

Police said Francois Rupan of Montreal sat down on a pile of paper at the corner of St. Catherine and Crescent streets, poured gasoline over himself and lit a match.

He was spotted by a police ambulance crew and rushed to Montreal General Hospital where he is in serious condition with second and third-degree burns to 60 per cent of his body.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations continued today between the construction industry and striking lower mainland electrical workers, with an end to their two-month dispute apparently at hand.

Stanfield Pulls Largest Crowd

Pre-Work Voting Out

Voting on the way to work won't be possible for many this year because polls in Monday's federal election don't open until 9 a.m.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m., rather than 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. as in the last federal election, in October 1972.

Stanfield recalled that he had demanded the two FLQ kidnappers be extradited to Canada to face trial while Trudeau has refused to take this action.

"Truth must come out in the open as to the motives which make Mr. Trudeau so evasive on this subject," the Tory leader said.

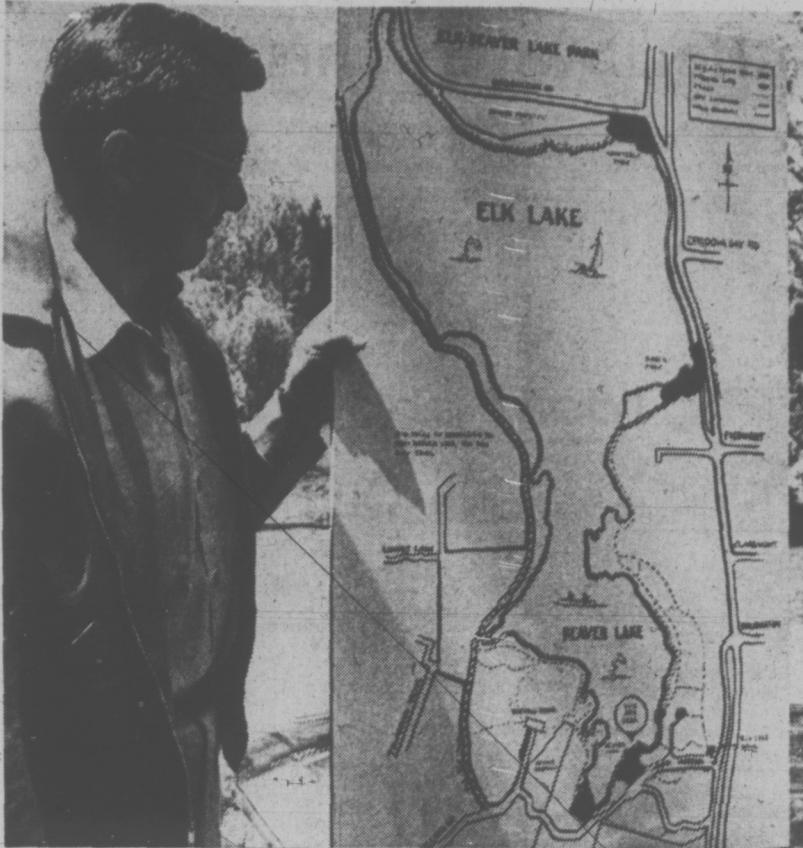

Calling on the prime minister to give a full and complete report to Canadians on the question, he said: "The very foundations of our system are at stake — justice must follow its course without obstruction and without exception."

Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday, meanwhile, completed his pitch for votes in western Canada — an area that largely rejected his Liberal government in 1972 — and was given a resounding send-off from Saskatchewan Liberal leader Davey Stewart.

Trudeau, concentrating on the Assiniboia riding where the Liberals feel they have a chance of defeat, New Democrat MP Bill Knight, flew into Gravelbourg and this town with the message that a re-elected Liberal government wants greater western representation.

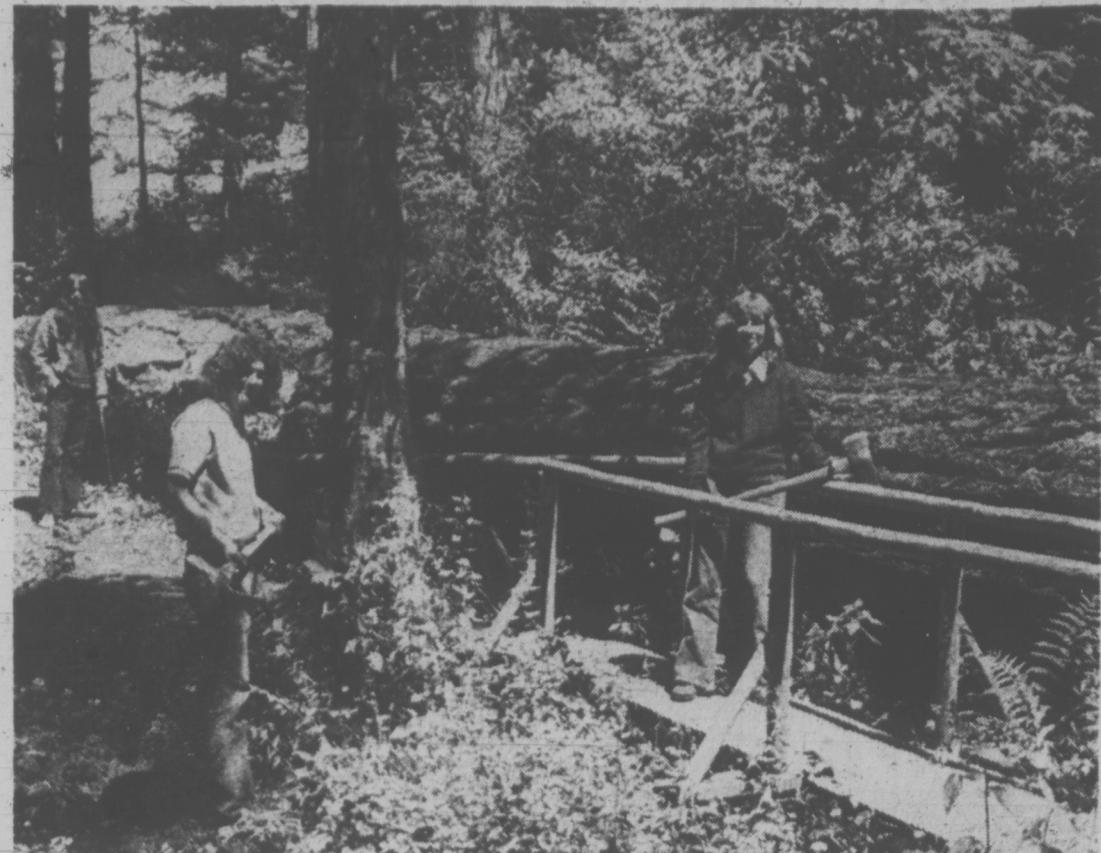

Stewart, speaking with unusual vigor in French, and holding his audience far better than he has in Quebec, used the occasion to attack Trudeau for evading an explanation of the government's failure

Hidden Meadows... A Haven Among the Throngs

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

To get away from it all, to picnic in privacy, to enjoy the semi-wilderness or to walk a tree-lined path away from the sound of traffic ...

To enjoy all this you don't have to drive hundreds of miles from Victoria.

It's right on your doorstep.

"Any person who can't get away from Victoria this summer can have a real outdoors experience within the capital region," says Bob Searing, chairman of the Victoria Out-door Club's conservation committee.

"There are some areas within the region which give you a feeling that you are miles away from civilization," he added. "It is true, space is fast disappearing. But we are not too badly off yet."

There are 12 capital regional parks, and four provincial parks in the region, excluding the Gulf Islands. In addition, three provincial marine parks are within easy reach of small boaters.

Also there are other recreational areas on Crown lands. People who frequent these areas usually keep their whereabouts a secret. They are the retreats of wilderness lovers.

Some of these parks where people can enjoy good recreational experiences, such as walking and overnight camping within easy reach of the city, will be published every Friday in the Times.

For starters ... Elk and Beaver lakes. The regional park was chosen because it is unique and situated within bus and walking distance.

Its beaches may be congested during the summer months, but it also has quiet and secluded areas.

the park's "Hidden Meadow?"

There are few parks in the region which can provide such diverse forms of recreation — swimming, boating, fishing, walking, riding, nature study, bird watching and picnicking.

The park includes about 600 acres of water and 700 acres of land and is visited by more than 200,000 people each year.

One of its big attractions is a five-mile trail which circles the lakes. The footpath is used by walkers, joggers and trail riders. It is also a favorite haunt of naturalists and an outdoor study area for school children in spring and fall.

Park foreman Howard Williams noted that 63 varieties of birds have been recorded in the park. A flock of Canada geese summer there. It is also home of deer, otter, mink and raccoon.

This year the capital regional district has a three-man crew upgrading the trail and installing small bridges.

Beaver-Elk Lakes is an ideal park for family groups and a place for relaxation for business people who have some time to spare during the day.

City 'Notes' Aberdeen Closing Threat

A threat from the owner of a private hospital, that he would demolish his building if his property taxes continue to rise, was merely noted by Victoria city finance committee on Thursday.

Neil de Macedo, president of Aberdeen Private Hospital, 1450 Hillside Avenue, had written asking city council to examine his "special situation," and said if he had to suffer another increase in taxes he would demolish the hospital "to make way for a use of the land which will not impose on me the grossly unfair method of assessment that presently exists."

He said, although the property was zoned duplex he was being taxed at a commercial rate of 68,000 square feet, despite the fact that only 20,000 square feet was revenue producing.

Deputy assessor Cranston Browning said under new provincial assessment legislation, requiring commercial and industrial property to be assessed at 50 per cent of market value, the Aberdeen hospital's tax bill had risen by about $6,000 this year.

He said the department's valuation of the property was $630,000 "but we have adequate sales information on other hospitals indicating that the value is considerably more."

The provincial government had recently bought the 85-bed Glengarry private hospital in Victoria for $875,000, he noted. Aberdeen has 93 beds.

As for de Macedo's point on duplex zoning, Browning said duplex-zoned land is all that is needed to build a private hospital in Victoria.

Commented Ald. Alf Hood: "The regrettable thing is that it's the patient who pays in the long run. These are people who don't qualify for the provincial dollar-a-day scheme. Their savings go down the drain and I think it's a hell of a shame."

Strawberry Festival

Half a ton of strawberries and many gallons of ice cream will be waiting for hungry visitors to the annual Saanich Strawberry Festival Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. at Beaver Lake Park.

Strawberry eaters will be entertained by the Victoria Symphony under conductor Laszlo Gati and a square dancing display by the Country Cousins.

The afternoon is organized by Saanich municipality. A 10-cent charge is made for the food, with profits going to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

Victoria Enforcing Noise Bylaw

For the first time since its new noise bylaw was enacted last November, the city of Victoria has begun legal proceedings to enforce it.

City solicitor Jakob de Villiers has issued a writ in county court against Chew Excavating Ltd. and the company's owner John Wah Chew, seeking an order to restrain the defendants from making an excessive noise on premises at 535 and 575 Gorge Road.

The affidavits to accompany the injunction, containing details of the alleged contravention, are still under preparation.

The action follows complaints from motel operators, alleging undue noise caused by heavy equipment and also by a motorcycle club using one of the locations.

There have been complaints that some guests checked out of the motels as a result of the noise.

Band Concert In the Park

Sunday afternoon concert in Beacon Hill park at 2:30 in the Cameron Bandshell will feature a band concert directed by Howard Denike.

The program will range from Toccata, by Frescobaldi, to concert rock. Guest vocalist will be Harry Eldson, Victoria Operative Society, with soloist Boyd Hood, trumpeter, and Rowland Grant, former music director at Victoria high school.

Unruliness Forced Cutting Of Swingers' Favorite Tree

A swimmer's favorite arbutus tree along Durrance Lake got the axe because it was creating an "unsatisfactory social situation" — unruliness.

J. A. Knox, administrative officer in the attorney-general's department, made the comment in a letter to Mike Fleming, 21, of 6999 West Saanich, who had complained about the tree being felled on orders of Sidney RCMP on June 20.

Knox's letter says the public had been subjected "improperly to the actions of irresponsible young people."

Knox also said traffic was being hampered by swimmers using the tree to swing from a rope over the adjacent road and into the water.

"It became necessary to take practical means to curtail what seemed to be unlawful activity in blocking the road, and since young people involved refused decently to comply with an authoritative request, the tree was removed."

Fleming was unavailable for comment, but his mother Mrs. Helen Fleming, who used the swing, said the rope couldn't be swung over the road because a swinger had to stand part way down a bank to reach it.

Aluminum Wiring Fire Threat: Expert Widely Used in New Victoria Homes

Aluminum wiring, widely used in new homes throughout Greater Victoria because of the high cost of copper, is a fire hazard which can turn houses into "time bombs," says an Ottawa specialist.

But local electrical inspectors, while less than enthused about aluminum, said today it is safe when safety code regulations are followed.

The problem is that aluminum, which is softer than copper, has a tendency to loosen at the points where it is joined to wall outlets because the metal "flows" or seeps from pressure or friction points.

This speeds the formation of aluminum oxide where the wire joins the fittings of a wall outlet. The oxide is an electrical resistor which can cause the outlet to overheat.

But local electrical inspectors, while less than enthused about aluminum, said today it is safe when safety code regulations are followed.

In Ottawa, Bob Jerabek,

who owns an independent testing laboratory and is a Canadian Standards Association standards writer, believes aluminum wiring in homes is unsafe under most conditions, creating the threat of "time bombs," waiting to go up in smoke.

Wall outlets approved by the CSA for use with aluminum aren't allowed to without prior approval, McArthur said.

In Victoria, electrical inspectors Doug Casey said his department takes "extra precautions" to ensure aluminum wiring is done according to the safety code.

The approved outlets must be used and that means there is no joining of aluminum wiring with copper, which produces a potential hazard, he said.

Do-it-yourselfers who want to wire their own homes with aluminum aren't allowed to without prior approval, McArthur said.

Aluminum wiring is "sort of frowned on" by the department, said Casey. Some electrical contractors still refuse to use it.

End of Snarl Frees Mirror

After a political snarl of 10 months, the 15-ton telescope mirror blank, destined to become the primary mirror for the Canada-France-Hawaii telescope, today was taken from its iron crate at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Mount Saanich Mountain.

It had been delivered Sept. 11, 1973, but observatory director Dr. K. O. Wright explained that political negotiations between the three participating countries had delayed work on the mirror.

The uncrating ceremony was watched by a group of officials which included Dr. Bill Armstrong, deputy president of the University of British Columbia. Armstrong is chairman of the Canada-France-Hawaii Corp. which will direct the project, which Wright said would cost $20 million in 1972 dollars."

It will take about 2½ years to grind the huge 144-inch mirror blank, which is made of Cervit, a glass ceramic material which is impervious to temperature changes.

Wright said it would take a crew a whole day to lower the mirror blank into place on the grinding table at the observatory.

Wright was in Hawaii Wednesday to attend the lava-turning ceremony at the telescope site, on top of the extinct Mauna Kea volcano.

Wright said Hawaii and Chile provide the best sites in the world for telescopes. Hawaii was chosen because France already has interests in a Chilean one.

The back of the mirror will be ground and polished first. Chief optician Roy Dancey said this would be done with a huge wooden tool, faced with ceramic tiles, using aluminum oxides for grinding and rare earth oxides for polishing.

Work on the front of the mirror blank should begin in October, the ceramic tiles being replaced with pyrex ones.

Dancey explained the diameter of the blur circle must be reduced to the diameter of a human hair by completion.

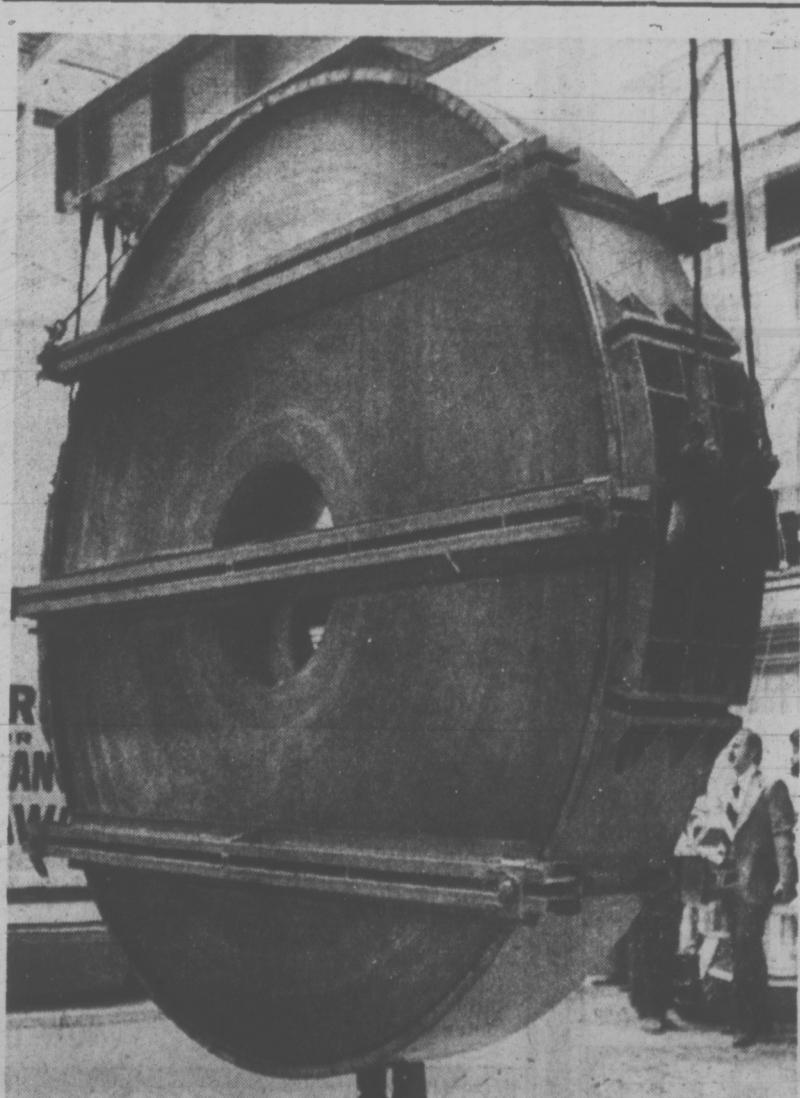

"This means errors must not exceed one millionth of an inch," he said.

The $800,000 mirror was bought in the United States and originally shipped to Paris but sent here from the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique de France when Canada decided to take part in the project.

Canada-France-Hawaii Corp. has 10 directors, four Canadian, four French and two from Hawaii.

The Montreal consulting engineer company, SNC, is designing the dome of the telescope.

Canada will be responsible for the mirror and the dome while France will organize the mechanical installation. The University of Hawaii will provide roads to the site.

Happy Birthday, Canada

CANOEING DOWN MERSEY RIVER FROM KEJIMKUJIK LAKE

By HARRY BRUCE

KEJIMKUJIK NATIONAL PARK, N.S. — Nobody can say for sure how old some of them are. They are just these strange doodles on stone, the quiet work of unknown men in an unknown century, the creations of idle moments in the hush by the shore of the black and shining lake.

The dark slate itself has been for 500 million years, and it has been blackboard smooth for millennia. For centuries before white men found the lake, the Mi'kmaq moved north from their summer fishing on the Nova Scotia coast, and stroked their canoes upriver and under the great hemlocks and on into winter, and the country of the caribou, and the lake.

They were here while the Black Death swept Europe. They were here when Shakespeare was a boy and, among some of the pictures on the stone in the wilderness, there's no hint that the artists had ever seen a European or knew there was a Europe.

There's a bird like a blue heron, only he has four legs. There are stars all around him, and maybe he's a god. There's a weird, pure design. It's like an intricate French curve but it states mystery. There's a deer, and men fishing and hunting, and the lines of all these drawings are as thin as a spider's leg.

The record moves down toward us in time. The Europeans have arrived, and the stone shows it. Europa touches the way the Mi'kmaq dress. There's a trace of Europe even in the feathered headdress that has barely survived the scraping ice of 200 winters and 200 springs. One man looks vaguely like a French cavalier. There are crosses, hand tracings, and words in a language you will never understand.

Generations disappear. White men come up from the south shore to find timber for their ships and they, too, have their moments of peace as the sun slides down behind the lake. Neither can they resist scratching on the old stones the visions in their heads.

They draw ships. They know ships, and the people around here who still care about the Age of Sail will tell you that the rigging is flawless on the frozen vessels that have been sailing the stone shores of Lake Kejimkujik for, say, 150 years.

The Age of Sail dies, the men who made it die. At the turn of our own century, the lake becomes a paradise for intrepid sportsmen. They value it for the reason the Mi'kmaq have always valued it — fish and game. They leave their names on the stone, and now it's our turn.

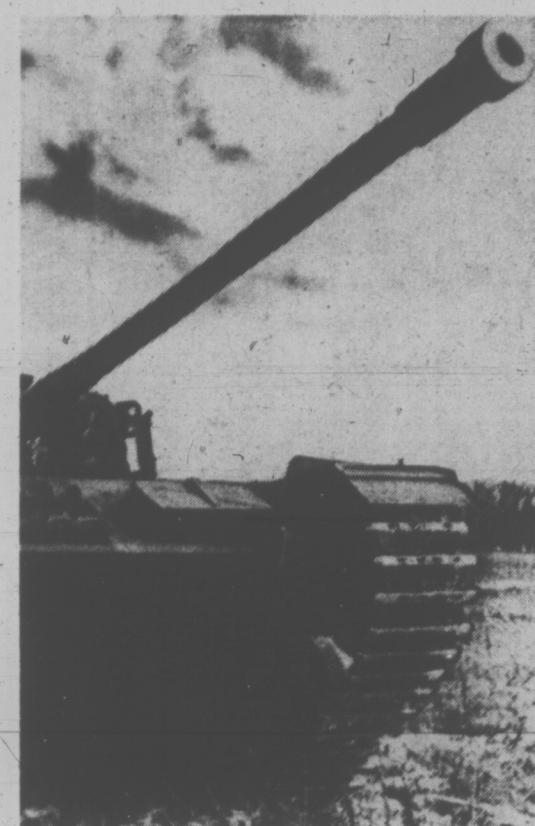

Park naturalists take people to the stone pictures and let them take rubbings with tracing paper and a soft pencil but they prefer you to clean the gravel off your shoes, or even to remove them, before you walk on the stone. They're trying to save this strange and priceless gallery in the wilderness from erosion, and worse.

The artists' tools were only bones, rocks and knives and, now, many of the etchings are so faint you need a guide to find them for you. You could be standing on one without knowing it.

You might get annoyed over the failure of your hunt. You might sit down to scratch your own initials, your own expression of your own permanence, right on top of the work of someone who was there centuries before you were even born.

And that's what's happening at Kejimkujik National Park. More than 200,000 people visit the park every summer, and "Joe Blow, August 1, '73," and "Eddy and Doris Forever, July 17, '71," and a whole lot of similar stuff are slowly wiping out the legacy of the stone.

One park naturalist reports the supreme irony of the desecration. Right over an ancient drawing someone had scratched out — "1867-1967, Happy Birthday, Canada." The naturalist said, "I don't know what we can do about it. All I know is, it makes me sick."

Tanks for the Middle East

ordered 30 F-14s at a cost of $900 millions.

The Indian government still insists, of course, that it has no intention of developing its bomb for destructive purposes, but the fact remains that the safeguards attached to its own nuclear deal with Canada have not stood in its way.

SIPRI forecasts that the local arms race that has developed among the countries bordering the Persian Gulf, fuelled by the wealth they are obtaining from oil, will accelerate still more, with Iran and Saudi Arabia in the lead.

During 1973 Iran had outstanding orders for 800 Chieftain tanks, 250 Scorpion light tanks, more than 300 F-4 and F-5 fighter aircraft, and nearly 500 helicopters. About 200 of these helicopters will be Cobra gunships armed with the latest American wire-guided anti-tank missiles. Early this year the Persians

(less than a kiloton) should not blur the distinction between nuclear and conventional weapons. In its view it is of paramount importance that an absolute "firebreak" be maintained between the two.

Among the SIPRI report's specific suggestions for future arms limitation agreements are restrictions on the power and location of submarine detection arrays on the seabed, control of anti-submarine aircraft, and a link between the number of hunter-killer submarines and the number of strategic missile boats deployed. Such limitations might, for example, have the effect of prolonging the "credibility" of the small British and French deterrent submarine forces.

It Could Only Happen in Paris

By DAVID LEITCH
New Statesman

PARIS — Madame Mimi Santoni, currently holidaying incognito at a secret address in the South of France, is not the kind of girl you meet at a Legion of Mary Lenten breakfast. Were she, such occasions would be more heavily patronised.

Mimi's sartorial taste runs to outmoded yet becoming micro-minis, her shaggy mane is ablaze with blonde highlights, and when Mimi talks (a rare occurrence just recently) both accent and argot at once identify her as a denizen of Pigalle, the fun section of Paris which always seems awash with visiting football fans. There she worked (again until just recently) in a cabaret bar. Less specifically she herself describes her occupation as "the entertainment business."

Yes indeed. As is usual in these fun-loving circles Mimi has a child whom she adores and a husband who has what English criminal lawyers call "form". Most recently a stretch in the Sante prison on prostitution charges. Their family residence is in the Rue Dulong, a moderately fashionable address in the 17th arrondissement which has the advantage of being close to both Montmartre and the Parc Monceau.

Long Afternoons

This apartment, where Mimi was visited by numerous friends in the long afternoons, is not, as the French pop papers say, "totally unknown to the services of police." These services received a bothered call from Mimi shortly after lunch on May 20. She told them to send a doctor fast. One of her friends had just died.

These French services are most efficient in emergencies and within minutes the neighbors were distressed to find a brace of squad cars in the street. In due course they were joined by an emergency medical squad sent by that excellent but indiscreet body of men, the Sapeurs-Pompiers of Paris.

Through some happy cultural omission there are no French anecdotes in which the principal characters are the actress and the bishop but, ironically, as will become apparent, Gallic commercial travellers are full of chirpy tales involving the fireman and the baker's wife. For 30 minutes the firemen of the 17th arrondissement applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation techniques on Mimi's guest, but to no avail.

At least one of them, who leaked the story afterwards, must have been aware he had stumbled on a new mythological archetype — let us call it the Lady Entertainer and the Cardinal. The fireman in question was a TV addict and he had no difficulty in recognising the man on Mimi's floor. Here was no itinerant Celtic supporter. The corpse, for the visitor had clearly departed for a better world, belonged to no less than Cardinal Jean Danielou, by some way the best-known and admired church leader in France.

It seems there are more precedents than one might guess for gentlemen, though not as far as I can discover cardinals, expring of natural causes in circumstances which, to borrow another piece of French jargonese, "involve the perfume of scandal".

The police know the form. They do not like to upset the nearest and dearest with squalid details. The convention is that a statement is issued noting the deceased was struck down by a heart attack in the street outside the incriminating address. This they did, after a conference with Pere Andre Costes, the provincial of the Jesuit order in France to which the cardinal belonged.

However, at some point things began to go wrong with this humane and well-tried system. Before the Jesuits had time to administer the Last Unction the staircase at 56 Rue Dulong was already full of jostling journalists, largely, it was noted, from the gutter press. According to some reports they were actually there before the Commissaire of the 17th arrondissement who was, to put it mildly, overwhelmed that a prince of the church, a conservative theologian and who was particularly well known for his severity on the issue of chastity.

Cardinal Danielou's red hat, awarded in 1969, largely stemmed from his exigent moral line on the vexed question of the celibacy of the priesthood. His thundering television attacks on the concept of married clergy were, in fact, the basis for his post-mortem identification by the emergency fireman.

To make him even fairer game, in the eyes of Le Canard at any rate, the dead man had also been an implacable opponent of the ecumenical movement in all its forms. They resented him all the more for being a nice and unpretentious man who was always open to the press.

Despite his conservative views he liked to drink with reporters, and was charitably content to engage them in simplistic theological arguments, late into the night if need be. This moral capital, acquired over many years, goes some way towards explaining why the story was hushed up for so long.

But no more. In recent years the Church in France has been like the dog that did not bark. There were several election issues which might well have had an ecclesiastical overtone — abortion and contraception reforms figured prominently in the programmes of the three major candidates, yet electoral debates were conducted on a strictly secular level.

The only point at which any remotely religious consideration was taken into account concerned the over-60 voters and the three marriages of Jacques Chaban-Delmas. It was thought in some circles in mind is the standardization of police uniforms and vehicles throughout Ontario to distinguish policemen from security guards, investigators and "even truck drivers."

Our inclination would be to require the security guards to move away from the police, rather than the other way around. Let them standardize — and in a way that will tell the public plainly that they are not to be confused with policemen. That would still allow us to tell the difference between a Metro Toronto policeman, an officer of the Ontario Provincial Police, and a Mountie.

What the police chiefs have policeman, the more authoritative the wearer will appear. We share with the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police a growing uneasiness over the similarity of the uniforms. If the difference between the uniforms begins to blur, so does our understanding of the powers vested in each, and that is most unfortunate because the difference is absolutely essential in a well-ordered society.

It is a logical extension of this psychology that the more this uniform can be made to resemble that of a legitimate

Arms Trade Expanding Despite Security Fear

Manchester Guardian

An alarming picture of accelerating worldwide arms proliferation — both nuclear and conventional — emerges from the latest analysis by the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, published last week.

It points to the growing willingness of arms producers to suppress anxiety about military security to export their latest equipment. Two spectacular examples are the supply of American F-14 fighters to Iran and of Russian MiG-25s to Syria — both committed to export within two years of going into production for the suppliers' own air forces.

Had the SIPRI report been delayed a little it would have been able to strengthen its argument by quoting the United States decision to offer nuclear power technology to Egypt.

Like Iran, which is to receive a French nuclear power plant, Egypt has signed the nonproliferation treaty. But she has not ratified it, and India's recent explosion of a nuclear device shows how smoothly the peaceful uses of such power can be translated into military ones once the basic information and material is provided.

The Indian government still insists, of course, that it has no intention of developing its bomb for destructive purposes, but the fact remains that the safeguards attached to its own nuclear deal with Canada have not stood in its way.

SIPRI forecasts that the local arms race that has developed among the countries bordering the Persian Gulf, fuelled by the wealth they are obtaining from oil, will accelerate still more, with Iran and Saudi Arabia in the lead.

Vancouver Prices Highest

Vancouver shoppers paid the highest prices in the country for food last month and found their grocery bill 50 per cent higher than it was a year earlier.

A Canadian Press survey of 17 standard food items put the market basket value in Vancouver at $18.02 in June, compared with $17.61 in May and $12 in June, 1973.

While Victoria is not included in the survey, it is generally conceded that grocery prices here are marginally higher than Vancouver.

The nation-wide survey showed sirloin, at $2.35 a pound, cod at $1.39 and butter at 93 cents a pound were more expensive in Vancouver than in any other city checked.

Tomatoes rose in price by 30 cents, to 79 cents, and apples were up to 45 cents from 29 the previous month. A mid-month panic by cattlemen, brought on by the fear that a ban on cattle imports from the U.S. might be lifted, caused wholesale beef prices to drop. But Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan cut the panic short and stopped the price drop by pledging to hold firm with import restrictions despite U.S. government threats of reprisal.

Apples and potatoes in some centres increased in price with the introduction to the market of more expensive delicious apples and new potatoes. Produce prices, however, showed signs of levelling off as domestic stocks replaced imported goods on the shelves.

In Montreal, the price of bread was down 13 cents to 31 cents a loaf, while peas dropped 11 cents to 35 cents a pound and sugar fell three cents to $1.79. Potatoes also cost less but sirloin increased 30 cents to $2.19 a pound and pork rose 10 cents to $1.55. The market basket price at Montreal was $16.23, down 73 cents from the May bill but up $3.13 from the previous June.

Halifax beef prices were up 14 cents at $1.99; coffee rose 24 cents to $1.33 and sugar

Canada Near Top of World In Price Race

PARIS (CP) — Canada showed the second-highest increase in consumer prices in May of any of the 24 countries with membership in the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

But the Paris-based OECD said today that for the overall 12 months ending in May, the Canadian increase was less than the average for the 24 countries.

In May Canadian consumer prices increased by 1.7 per cent over the previous month. Switzerland was highest with an increase of 1.8 per cent. Prices in the United States rose by 1.1 per cent.

These rate comparisons produced by the OECD are not seasonally adjusted and do not by themselves provide a comparison of actual prices in the various member countries.

However, they do provide an indication whether price pressures are increasing or declining. The OECD said that compared with April, the May trend suggested a significant slowdown in consumer price increases in Japan — partly for seasonal reasons — and in The Netherlands, Austria, Finland, Spain and Britain.

Accelerations were noted particularly in Canada and the United States," the organization said.

It estimated that the overall inflation rate for member countries for May exceeded more than one per cent for the sixth consecutive month.

In the 12 months ending in May, the Canadian increase of 11 per cent compared with the average of 12.5 per cent for the 24 countries.

Among OECD members, West Germany enjoyed the lowest annual inflation rate for the year ending May 30 with 7.2 per cent.

The next lowest were Sweden, Luxembourg and Norway, all with 8.6 per cent.

Iceland scored the highest inflation rate for the 12 month period with 32.2 per cent. Next came Greece with 31 per cent and Portugal with 26.5 per cent.

May increases for the countries cited with April's rises in brackets: Canada 1.7 (0.7); United States 1.1 (0.6); Switzerland 1.8 (0.6); Greece 1.5 (1.1); Japan 0.3 (2.7); Netherlands 0.4 (1.4); Austria 6.3 (1.1); Finland 1.0 (2.5); Spain 1.2 (2.2); Britain 1.4 (3.4).

The latest available figure for Iceland was a rise of 2.28 per cent for the first quarter of 1974, the OECD added.

Riot Fills Bangkok's Streets

Times News Services

BANGKOK — Gunfire rattled throughout the Chinese section of Bangkok today on the third successive day of riots which have forced the government to proclaim a state of emergency and sent paramilitary troops backed by tanks into the streets.

The death toll from three nights of fighting neared 30. Prime Minister Sanya Thammakasai conferred in emergency debate with his cabinet and King Bhumibol Adulyadej, then reported that two Chinese motorcycle gangs were behind the violence.

Sanya said he does not plan to impose a curfew, but urged residents to stay home.

It was similar civil violence in October last year which triggered the downfall of the old military government and led to Sanya's rise to power.

The violence reflects long-simmering resentment by the city's young Chinese against Thai police. "The people here just hate policemen," said one police officer assigned to Chinatown.

Marine Gas Price Up 8 Cents

The energy crisis has turned the tide on boat owners who are now paying at least eight cents more for marine gas at Greater Victoria marinas.

"It's the first price rise in God knows how long," reported a spokesman for Van Isle Marina where a gallon of regular marine gas was hiked by oil companies to 52 cents from 44 cents.

At Canoe Cove Marina a similar increase from 41.8 cents to 52 cents is now in store for purchasers, but a spokesman said there have been few critical comments from boat owners.

"Boaters, especially from the States, are just glad marine gas doesn't cost as much as auto gas," he said.

The average auto gas price at service stations is quoted at 62 cents a gallon, and the difference has been attributed to the 15-cent-a-gallon road tax, compared to a tax on marine gas at three cents a gallon.

Some boat owners, however, claim marine gas has gone up to 57.9 cents a gallon, almost equal to the price of auto gas, when boat gas has always been about 12 cents cheaper.

Stanfield Pulls Largest Crowd

Times News Services

ST. JEROME, Que. — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield received the biggest crowd of his campaign so far here Thursday night.

It also was the largest rally ever held by Conservatives in this province regarded as politically stony ground for the party.

More than 4,000 filled every available seat in the local arena and stood shoulder-to-shoulder in the aisles. The size of the audience, some of it brought from constituents several hundred miles away delighted Tory organizers and obviously impressed Stanfield.

Following hard on the boisterous and jubilant rally in Winnipeg Tuesday, it was heralded by the Tories as a fitting climax to their campaign in Quebec for the July 8 election.

Reports covering the campaign also calculated that the rally was larger than any held by Prime Minister Trudeau or any other leader in this province.

Stanfield, speaking with unusual vigor in French, and holding his audience far better than he has in Quebec, used the occasion to attack Trudeau for evading an explanation of the government's failure to act on information that two kidnappers of British trade commissioner James Cross are in France.

And he continued his attack on the prime minister for refusing to deal with the issue of the Liberal contingency plan to combat inflation — a form of price-and-income controls similar to the Tory plan which Trudeau has been ridiculing.

Stanfield recalled that he had demanded the two FLQ kidnappers be extradited to Canada to face trial while Trudeau has refused to take this action.

"Truth must come out in the open as to the motives which make Mr. Trudeau so evasive on this subject," the Tory leader said.

Calling on the prime minister to give a full and complete report to Canadians on the question, he said "the very foundations of our system are at stake — justice must follow its course without obstruction and without exception."

Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday, meanwhile, completed his pitch for votes in western Canada — an area that largely rejected his Liberal government in 1972 and was given a resounding send-off from Saskatchewan Liberal leader Davey Steuart.

Trudeau, concentrating on the Assiniboia riding where the Liberals feel they have a chance to defeat New Democrat MP Bill Knight, flew into Gravelbourg and this town with the message that a re-elected Liberal government wants greater western representation.

After Trudeau made his plea in both centres, Steuart went to the microphone to urge voters to throw their votes on the way to work won't be possible for many this year because polls in Monday's federal election don't open until 9 a.m.

Polls will be open from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m., rather than 8 a.m. until 7 p.m. as in the last federal election, in October 1972.

Victoria riding returning officer Eleanor Allan said dozens voting in the advanced polls forgot the change and turned up at 8 a.m., and she's hoping this won't happen Monday.

All working people will have a chance to vote, however. The law requires employers to provide four consecutive hours for employees to vote, she said. This means if you normally work until 4:30 p.m. you must be let off at 4 p.m. to vote.

However, employers have the right to decide which four hours off the employee gets.

All voters have been informed by mail where their polling station is. Anyone who forgets can call the returning officer — 598-5131 for Victoria riding and 479-8414 for Esquimalt-Saanich riding — or headquarters of any political party.

Fishermen, prospectors, students registered in a college or university, or handicapped people unable to get to the polls may vote by proxy.

Proxy certificates must be picked up tonight at the latest, with a doctor's certificate for handicapped people or a certificate from the university registrar for students.

under $44,000," although this includes the cost of full-page newspaper advertisements.

The expense payments came to light when Higdon, now a Vancouver Centre canvasser for the federal NDP, said he and about 30 fellow miners workers had their expenses paid and most regarded the trip as a free ride to Vancouver.

Higdon said the committee paid his $94 return fare from Smithers to Vancouver, and covered an overnight stay at a hotel near Vancouver International Airport and a flight back from Victoria to Vancouver. Chartered buses took demonstrators to Victoria.

Higdon said he talked to many of his co-workers, another 30 workers from a neighboring mine who were on the same flight, and at least 30 people not from our group at the demonstration.

When he asked questions of miners at the demonstration, most of them were kind of embarrassed because they didn't know what was going on.

He said there was no discussion in his group of the controversial mining bill and no briefing before the demonstration.

Told of Higdon's comments without being told who made them, Stewart said: "He was probably a strong NDP supporter. He's entitled to his opinion."

Shutting, FIR Adamant

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Times Staff

Negotiators for the International Woodworkers of America went to Forest Industrial Relations to seek a better contract settlement Thursday night but apparently came away empty-handed.

No one was available for comment today on the meeting which lasted until almost midnight at the Bayshore Inn, Vancouver.

The IWA negotiating committee was meeting at a secret location in Vancouver this morning to decide its next course of action.

Although an official strike has not been called, more and more plants in the Lower Mainland were closing down as workers began unofficial strikes.

On Vancouver Island, a majority of the 14,000 IWA workers have been off the job since the last contract expired June 14.

Sooke Forest Products closed this morning when unofficial pickets appeared at the sawmill, which employs 300 men. The Alberni Division sawmill in Port Alberni, with 650 men, also closed but the 300-worker Honeymoon Bay sawmill reopened.

Altogether, about 12,000 of the 14,000 Island IWA members were off work.

It was not known if the IWA and EIR negotiators were planning to meet again but it was understood that FIR, bargaining agency for 120 companies, referred to the IWA negotiators that its last offer was a final one.

The official result of the IWA membership vote on the proposed contract showed rejection by 6,941 votes to 6,666, a majority of 275. But 5,300 votes were disqualified, including the entire Port Alberni local, because members failed to sign for their ballots.

The coast IWA section represents 32,000 loggers and millworkers. The turnout in the vote was 59 per cent, or 42 per cent if the disqualified ballots are excluded.

The contract offer was recommended by the coast negotiating committee of the union and by six of the nine local executive boards. Two locals, Victoria and New Westminster, recommended rejection and Courtenay did not make a recommendation.

The offer included a pay raise of 12 per cent, with a minimum increase of 65 cents an hour, a number of rate revisions and a cost-of-living clause in a one-year agreement. Present wages range from $4.45 an hour for laborers to $7.45 an hour for head sawyers.

In Port Alberni, IWA financial secretary Bill Hawkes said today the entire local ballot was disqualified because 24 showed up without signatures in the vote held at a mass meeting.

If the vote was conducted operation by operation, instead of a single mass meeting, only those operations which contained spoiled ballots would have been disqualified, he said.

The local union isn't happy that the mistake was made and that the ballots had to be thrown out but it didn't make any difference in the total ballot because this local had rejected the contract by a small majority," he said.

The earlier unofficial vote count showed the contract rejected by 83 votes.

Chat With the King

Is exactly what Lloyd George (played by Anthony Hopkins) is doing — chatting with Edward VII (played by Thorley Waters) — in this scene from the premiere episode of Masterpiece Theatre's, The Edwardians, a four-week series on real-life figures in Edwardian England, to be telecast on Sunday at 9 p.m. on Channel 9. The opening chapter dramatizes an early chapter in the political career of David Lloyd George, nine years before he became prime minister.

Movies

The Golden Breed (xx), on 13 at 10. Surfing fans will enjoy this well-photographed 1968 documentary about surfing in California, Mexico and Hawaii.

A Queen for Caesar (x), on 13 at 1. A 1962 Italian-made spectacle about Cleopatra's early years from the time she ascended Egypt's throne to her meeting with Caesar.

Girl Crazy (xxx), on 4 at 2. Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland have it all to themselves and they make the Gershwin score a pure delight in this 1943 musical about a rich young Easterer whose dad exiles him to a small school out west.

The Hanged Man (xx), on 7 at 12. New Orleans at Mardi Gras time sets the scene for this 1964 crime-drama about a man out to avenge the murder of a friend. Cast includes Robert Culp, Edmund O'Brien and Vera Miles.

Little Miss Broadway (xx), on 11 at 2. Shirley Temple charms her way through this 1938 backstage musical story co-starring Jimmy Durante and George Murphy.

JASON ROBARDS

... on 5 at 9

Four's a Crowd (xx), on 13 at 3. A good cast (Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland and Rosalind Russell) highlights this 1939 not-so-funny comedy about a wealthy heiress and her assorted beaus.

The Outcast (xxx), on 11 at 10. John Derek stars in this fast, exciting 1954 western about a young man who returns to Colorado intending to get a ranch from his uncle which he thinks is rightfully his. Well-directed and better than average.

A Man Called Adam (xxx), on 12 at 11. Sammy Davis Jr. is excellent in the difficult role of a musician who is filled with bitterness and self-pity. Filmed in 1966, and co-starring Peter Lawford and Louis Armstrong, the film tells a tragic tale of the jazz world and a blackman striving himself probably had to come to grips with his own early career.

The Phantom Speaks (x), on 13 at 11. A 1945 thriller about a dead killer who returns to impose his will upon a scientist. Cast is unimportant.

Warpath (xx), on 2 at 11:40. Routine 1951 western about a man riding the trail of revenge for the murder of his fiancee, starring Edmond O'Brien, Polly Bergen and Dean Jagger.

The Naked Spur (xx), on 4 at 11:45. Excellent photography enhances the action of this 1953 adventure tale filmed on location in the Rockies. The story follows a group of bounty hunters in pursuit of a killer with a price on his head, and a competent cast includes James Stewart, Janet Leigh and Robert Ryan.

Sanctuary (xx), on 5 at 11:45. A distorted and sloppy 1961 film rendering of William Faulkner's seamy tale of the South in the 1920s, starring Lee Remick, Yves Montand, Odette, and Bradford Dillman.

Moulin Rouge (xxxx), on 8 at 2:30. A fast-paced 1960 comedy romp about a marital misunderstanding that snowballs into a spy plot, starring Tony Curtis, Dean Martin and Janet Leigh.

deformity caused his despair in love, and who frequented the more notorious quarters of Paris. It's a colorful drama highlighted by a superb performance by Jose Ferrer.

Who Was that Lady? (xxx), on 8 at 2:30. A fast-paced 1960 comedy romp about a marital misunderstanding that snowballs into a spy plot, starring Tony Curtis, Dean Martin and Janet Leigh.

KATHERINE HEPBURN
on 4 at 11:30

Mother Wore Tights (xxx), on 13 at 2. An entertaining 1947 musical about a girl who marries and becomes part of a song-and-dance act. More plausible than the usual backstage musical, with good songs and a great cast (Betty Grable and Dan Dailey).

That Forsyte Woman (xx), on 4 at 2:30. Fans of the acclaimed BBC series, The Forsyte Saga, will be disappointed in this long, dull 1949 film version of Galsworthy's A Man of Property, starring Greer Garson and Errol Flynn.

Killer Bees (xx), on 6 and 8 at 2:30. A 1974 TV-movie starring Gloria Swanson as the head of a family of wine growers whose bees have turned from pollinating grapes to killing men.

Brighty of Grand Canyon (x), on 7 at 2:30. A 1967 adventure tale for children.

The Colossus of New York (xx), on 11 at 2:20. A fetchingly sci-fi thriller about a surgeon who transfers the brain of his son into a huge robot. Filmed in 1958 and starring Otto Kurzer and Mala Powers.

Anything Goes (x), on 5 at 8:30. A routine 1956 musical made palatable by a great cast that includes Bing Crosby, Donald O'Connor, Mitzi Gaynor and French dancer Jeanmarie.

The Net (xxx), on 12 at 3:30. An engrossing, British-made 1953 story of an isolated team of dedicated researchers working to impinge jet aircraft, starring Herbert Lom, Phyllis Calvert and Robert Beatty.

Colossus: The Forbin Project (xx), on 7 at 4. No rating available on this 1970 sci-fi tale highlighted by computer gadgetry, starring Eric Braeden and Canadian actor Gordon Pinsent.

Three Faces West (xx), on 11 at 4. John Wayne and Charles Coburn star in this interesting 1940 story about migratory farmers seeking a new life in Oregon.

High Sierra (xxxx), on 13 at 4. An excellent script and fine direction highlight this 1941 crime drama starring Humphrey Bogart in the classic role of an ex-con on the run whose flight from the law is complicated by a woman (Ida Lupino).

Last of the Mohicans, on 13 at 6. A 1963 Mexican-made film version of James Fenimore Cooper's classic tale of bravery on the old frontier.

The Silencers (x), on 4 at 8:30. Girls' and gadgets abound in this 1966 adventure spoof starring Dean Martin as special agent Matt Helm trying to foil an Oriental plot to take over a U.S. missile base. This was the first of Dean's four appearances as a suave James Bond-type, but there's nothing stylish about the film, or Dino.

Dear Heart (xxx), on 12 at 9. Glenn Ford and Geraldine Page star in this sentimental 1965 story about a salesman who meets and woos a spinster post-mistress in New York City during a convention. There's more gushing sentiment than need be, but a good cast keeps things under control, and Geraldine Page is customarily expert.

Pat and Mike (xxxx), on 4 at 11:30. A riotously funny 1953 comedy with the irresistible Spencer Tracy-Katherine Hepburn combination. Hepburn plays a golf pro and Tracy is a big time sports promoter and their business merger eventually turns into romance. Recommended.

Advance to the Rear (xx), on 7 at 11:30. A wacky Civil War farce about a company of Union misfits and an attractive lady spy, filmed in 1964 and starring Glenn Ford and Stella Stevens.

No Time for Sergeants (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Andy Griffith re-creates his stage role in this 1958 film version of the Broadway hit about a Georgia farm boy who gets drafted into the Army and creates mayhem among his colleagues and superiors.

Five Graves to Cairo (11:45), on 2 at 11:45. Superb fiction, stylishly directed by Billy Wilder, about a Britisher who smoothly wangles secrets from Rommel. Filmed in 1943 and starring Frederic March and Erich von Stroheim.

Moulin Rouge (xxxx), on 6 at 11:45. Director John Huston's much-acclaimed 1952 biography of the painter Toulouse-Lautrec, whose physical deformity caused his despair in love, and who frequented the more notorious quarters of Paris. It's a colorful drama highlighted by a superb performance by Jose Ferrer.

The Deadly Hunt (xx), on 5 at midnight. Filmed in and around Vancouver, B.C., this 1971 TV-movie about a young couple pursued by paid killers amid a raging forest fire. Peter Lawford, Tony Franciosa and Anjanette Comer star.

Richest Guy in Town, on 5 at 10. Sportswriter Royal Brougham is interviewed by Channel 5 sports reporter Ray McMakin. (30 mins.)

CBS News Special

David Lowe, the late CBS new producer, is seen here exhibiting the formidable arsenal of weapons available on the black market to private citizens, on a re-telecast of Murder and the Right to Bear Arms, the first of this summer's 12-part CBS News Retrospective series, premiering on Sunday at 6 p.m. on Channel 7 and 12.

CBC-TV Buys Upstairs Downstairs

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation announced purchase of the British-produced television series Upstairs Downstairs, for telecast on its English television network.

Upstairs Downstairs, set in England early in this century, is the continuing story of a household in London's elegant Belgravia district, and the personal dramas of the family interacting with those of their servants "below stairs." The well-to-do household is seen as a microcosm of Edwardian society. Although the series is a serial, it presents each episode as a self-contained chapter in the lives of the "upstairs" and "downstairs" characters.

David Langton portrays Richard Bellamy, the head of the house, a government minister, with Rachel Gurney as his wife Lady Marjorie, Simon Williams as the son James, and Nicola Pagett as the daughter Elizabeth. Heading the cast "downstairs" are Jean Marsh as Rose the parlormaid, Angela Baddeley as the cook, and Brian Osborne as Pearce, the coachman.

Movies

Spy in the Sky (x), on 13 at noon. Routine 1958 spy drama about a Soviet defector who carries important secrets to the West.

Adventures of Captain Fabian (x), on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Errol Flynn wrote the script and stars in this slipshod 1951 costume adventure.

Plainsman and the Lady (x), on 11 at 1. William Elliott and Vera Ralston star in this 1946 western about the beginning of the Pony Express.

Stormy Weather (xxx), on 13 at 1:30. An entertaining, well-made 1943 all-black musical starring Lena Horne and Bill Robinson. It has a silly plot as most musicals do, but the individual performers are excellent.

The Jazz Singer (xxx), on 3 at 3:30. An updated (1952) version of the old Al Jolson (1927) film that revolutionized the motion picture business. This version did not make history but is nevertheless an enteresting story about a Jewish boy who prefers show business to becoming a cantor like his father. Good performances are turned in by Danny Thomas and Peggy Lee.

The Sword of Ali Baba (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A lively Arabian Nights tale, filmed in 1965, using footage from the 1944 Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves.

Ensign Pulver (xx), on 12 at 7. A 1964 sequel to Mister Roberts directed by Joshua Logan who hoped to repeat his success, but failed. It's slapstick comedy all the way, and even pros like Burl Ives, Walter Matthau and Kay Medford can't rise above the sinking material.

A Lesson in Love, on 9 at 8. Swedish director Ingmar Bergman's 1953 comedy, that offers an uncharacteristic satire of extramarital romance, told with ironic wit.

Sex and the Single Girl (xxx), on 11 at 8. Helen Gurley Brown's best-seller has been turned into an innocent spoof in this 1964 comedy about the sexual adventures of Madison Avenue types and their female counterparts. The cast (Tony Curtis, Natalie Wood, Henry Fonda and Lauren Bacall) plays it for laughs that aren't always there.

Hudson's Bay (xx), on 13 at 8. An interesting historical tale, made in 1940, about the early fur traders and the hardships they endured in the Canadian wilderness of 1670. A competent cast includes Paul Muni and Gene Tierney.

PEGGY LEE
... on 5 at 3:30

Villa Rides (xx), on 4 at 9. Yul Brynner and Robert Mitchum star in this 1965 drama that's long on violence and short on historical fact, about the bandit career of Mexican revolutionary Pancho Villa (1877-1923).

Last of the Badmen (x), on 13 at 11. Routine 1957 western starring George Montgomery. No Time for Sergeants (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. Andy Griffith re-creates his stage role in this 1958 film version of the Broadway hit comedy about a Georgia farm boy who gets drafted into the army and creates mayhem among his colleagues and superiors.

Strangers in the City (xx), on 2 at midnight. A 1962 drama about a Puerto Rican family trying to adjust itself to the pattern of New York City life. The film has occasional ragged realism but is often amateurish and under-tight.

The Break, on 4 at midnight. Robert Shaw and Mary Ure star in this unreviewed psychological thriller about two former mental patients hired to commit murder.

The Shop on Main Street (xxxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. An award-winning 1965 Czech-made drama, tragic and beautifully acted, about a warm friendship that develops between a simple carpenter and an old Jewish shipkeeper during the Nazi occupation of Czechoslovakia. The film is notable for its rueful humor and perceptive characterizations.

The Magic Box (xxx), on 12 at midnight. An interesting 1952 British-made biography of William Friese-Green, the inventor of the motion picture camera, whose life was a tragedy through hardship and lack of recognition. Robert Donat stars, but because the British industry collaborated to produce this film, practically every actor in English films at that time makes brief appearances.

Today's Highlights

Not for Women Only, on 4 at 9:30. Award-winning host Barbara Walters delves into psychic phenomena in part 1 of a week-long discussion. Her guest this morning is mentalist Uri Geller. (30 mins.)

Impact, on 4 at 7:30. The Franklin Jazz Lab — A Success Story. Winners of the Reno International Jazz Festival, the 18-piece ensemble from a U.S. high school jazz laboratory performs. (30 mins.)

Election Coverage, on 8 and 8 at 8 p.m. The CBC and CTV begin federal election coverage and will continue until a Prime Minister is elected.

Behind the Lines, on 9 at 9:30. Watergate and the Press is the topic as this journalism series begins a season of repeats. Tonight's program, first telecast in October 1973, contrasts the media's reluctance to cover the story when it broke in June 1972, with the massive exposure Watergate has since received. (60 mins.)

Day at Night, on 9 at 10:30. Host James Day interviews film producer John Houseman, who comments on the early years in his career. (30 mins.)

'Mr. Dressup' Still Growing Up

At 47, and nearing his 10th anniversary as CBC-TV's Mr. Dressup, Ernie Coombs admits he still doesn't know what he wants to be when he grows up.

"Just entertain small fry, I guess," he says.

Mind you, Coombs lives on on-camera life that even Walter Mitty would envy. Over the years the soft-spoken, bespectacled master of the quick disguise has been many things to the delight of his small admirers. He's played a dragon, lion, skunk, cat, policeman, firefighter, witch, clown . . . and the list goes on.

Right now Mr. Dressup is casually attired in a sport shirt and slacks, and without the 'tickle trunk' from which he regularly plucks one of several hundred costumes weekday mornings at 10:30 on CBC-TV. His show embodies the best of fun, action and make-believe, with Coombs popping back and forth between the real, positive world and a fantasy world designed to stretch the child's imagination.

Coombs manages to create entertainment for the toddler — always with an educational flavor — by using a combination of people and puppets. Among the more prominent puppets are Casey (a red-headed, inquisitive litt'l boy) and his pet dog, Finnegan, operated by Judith Lawrence. Frequent visitors to the show are Susan Marcus and Toby Tarnow, who both assist Mr. Dressup in story-telling, dancing, building, inventing and other goings-on; Adrian (Popo) Pecknold, a lovable mime artist; and soprano singer Beth-Ann Cole. Off-camera contributors are producer Hedley Read and Joy Simons, a child psychologist who heads a writing staff of four.

Coombs cites a recent edition where Mr. Dressup was going through his bills, and young Casey carelessly scattered them — and was gently reprimanded. "The idea was that adults have certain things they have to do, certain responsibilities, and that they can't play with children all the time." Cleaning up the play room, taking out the garbage and washing dishes are other program examples. And not too long ago, Mr. Dressup answered one of the most basic questions asked by kids — namely, "where do I come from?" — in an edition subtitled Seeds and Eggs.

"With only one exception, the parents who wrote in afterwards thanked us for providing their children with a simple, tasteful discussion of how life begins."

Ernie's own beginnings are grass-roots Maine stock that goes back to the 1600s. He came to Canada about 14 years ago from Pittsburgh, Penn., where he was the producer of children's programs on an educational TV station. He was active with the Pittsburgh Miniature Theatre, a touring children's theatre company that travelled throughout the northeastern United States.

Ernie recalls coming to Toronto at the invitation of Fred Rogers, a close friend and fellow artist. "At the time Fred was commuting frequently between the U.S. and Canada, taping his own CBC-TV children's program called Mr. Rogers. I was impressed with the show and almost before you could say Mr. Dressup, I had my family moved to Toronto, where I became Fred's assistant puppeteer."

It wasn't long before Ernie was given his own television show. It was called Butternut Square, and, although it was later replaced by Mr. Dressup, its name remains in Butternut School — a nursery school Ernie and his actress wife Lynn set up four years ago east of the city, not far from their rural home.

This fall will mark Ernie Coombs 10th year as Mr. Dressup, and the furthest thing from his mind is retirement. "I think I can continue to be an interesting and worthwhile figure in the television scene, for some years to come. After all, kids don't care what age you are, or how you look, as long as you can relate to them and keep them interested. If it's okay with the public, and the CBC, I'd like to keep on for another 10 years, anyway . . ."

Movies

about an alcoholic ex-newspaperman and his struggle to reconstruct his shattered life.

Captain Newman, M.D. (xxx), on 11 at 3:30 Part 1. An interesting, well-directed 1963 drama of an airforce psychiatrist whose duty is to his patients first, and the military brass second. Excellent performances are turned in by Gregory Peck, Tony Curtis and especially the late Bobby Darin in the role of a mentally ill war veteran. (Conclusion tomorrow, same time and channel.)

Detective Story (xxxx), on 11 at 8. Kirk Douglas gives one of his best performances as a detective whose personal code becomes twisted from dealing with criminals over a number of years, in this excellent 1951 film version of the hit Broadway play. Most of the action takes place in New York precinct on one day with assorted "supporting" thieves getting some good scenes, particularly Lee Grant as a shoplifter. Eleanor Parker and William Bendix co-star.

This is My Love (xx), on 13 at 3:30. Fine performances by an excellent cast (James Cagney, Gig Young, Raymond Massey and Phyllis Thaxter) highlight this 1951 drama

The Elevator (xx), on 4 at 8:30. A predictable 1974 TV-movie about a group of diverse people stuck between floors of a high-rise office building in a stalled elevator. Cast includes James Farentino, Myrna Loy and Roddy McDowall.

Huemesque (xxx), on 13 at 11. A lengthy 1947 Fannie Hurst drama about a talented musician from the slums who meets, is sponsored and loved by, a wealthy society woman, with the inevitable tragic finale. Spiced with good dialogue, excellent classical music, and capable performances by John Garfield, Joan Crawford and Oscar Levant.

And the Bones Came Together, on 4 at 11:30. A made-for-TV mystery about a cemetery caretaker's revenge on the man trying to evict him, starring Herbert Berghof and Laurence Luckinbill.

Adam's Woman, on 12 at 11:30. No rating available on this brawling 1968 tale of pioneer Australia, filmed "down under" and starring John Mills, Jane Merrow and Beau Bridges.

Payment on Demand (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. For Bette Davis fans, a typical 1951 melodrama which makes full use of her "personal" acting style. Miss Davis' marriage to and headed towards divorce—but first there's a series of Pontius Pilate (xx), on 2 at midnight. An elaborate 1961 Italian-made chronicle of Pilate's life, starring Jean Marais, Jeanne Crain, Basil Rathbone and John Drew Barrymore.

Success of 'Kojak' Came As No Surprise

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

Success hasn't changed Telly Savalas. He still shaves every day with an electric razor. He shaves his face and he shaves his head. The sudden transition of Telly Savalas from one of the leading villains to the hero of Kojak is right in line with a great Hollywood tradition: Many of the most popular heroes of motion pictures and of television began their careers as villains who menaced a leading man. This list runs from Clark Gable to James Cagney to Humphrey Bogart to Raymond Burr.

The success of Kojak in last year's law 'n' order television season came as no surprise. The idea of the tough and compassionate New York City police detective had been tried out in a feature length film: The Marcus-Nelson Murder Case. Just from that one look, many forecasters labeled Kojak the most likely hit of the season. It was.

A writers' strike delayed the premiere of the series until Oct. 22, but in that first week it was in ninth place among all prime time programs. It had a 45 per cent share of the people looking at television at 10 p.m. Wednesday (CBS). Its ratings remained high nearly all season.

Kojak's ratings dipped only twice: once when it had to compete with NBC's movie, A Case of Rape and again when it was opposite the last hour of the drama: The Execution of Private Slovik.

Through the season, Kojak managed to wipe out its competition. Cancelled were ABC-TV's, Owen Marshall and its successor; Doc Elliot and NBC-TV's anthology series, Love Story.

Eventually Telly Savalas collected his Emmy award and noted, in a reference that puzzled many viewers, that he had finally gotten "the girl." He was referring to Emmy, for in private life his marriage of 23 years was being shattered. He and his wife, Lynn, were divorced in May.

But professionally the career of Telly Savalas had never been better. He had won the time period and he had won his Emmy. His reward from CBS was to have his show moved from its safe time period and moved to Sunday night (9 p.m., beginning in September).

This puts Kojak right after M-A-S-H and opposite NBC's Sunday Mystery Movie, which rotates McCloud, McMillan and Wife, Hec Rainey and Columbo.

By most forecasts, this means that CBS will break the NBC hold on Sunday night.

No major changes will be made in Kojak, except for giving a bigger part to Telly's brother, Demosthenes. He's the wirehaired and very plump plain clothesman that Kojak calls Stayros. (Nicknames are a habit in the Savalas family. Telly's first name is really Aristotle.)

What has pleased the top executive level at CBS has been the ability of Kojak producers Abby Mann, Matthew Rapf and James D. McAdams to create continuing tension with a minimum of violence."

The tension is carried mainly by Savalas, who looks and sounds threatening, even in making commonplace observations. This is offset by a surprising tenderness, a habit of licking candy lollipops and a weakness for giving candy to others.

Occasionally the tension is carried by unexpectedly strong language, such as the episode in which he promised a hoodlum: "I'll scatter your brains from here, to White Plains."

Savalas was in New York City last week, working in two episodes for the fall season. He isn't really surprised by the success of the series; nor is he all that much taken with his own sudden stardom.

Veteran Actress in New CBC Radio Series

Jane Mallett is the grandmother who collects long distance phone calls. In the Trans-Canada Telephone TV commercials. She's also the lady trying to make up her mind which flavor of Tums to buy. During a career of over 40 years in radio, TV, film and on the stage, Mrs. Mallett has played everything from ingenues to grand duchesses. Now, she's about to take on another role in a CBC Radio Series especially tailored for her unique comic talents.

Travels with Aunt Jane.

This situation comedy will run for 12 weeks, Wednesdays at 10:30 p.m. EDT, starting July 10. It replaces Inside From the Outside, the popular comedy satire series, during the summer, and will be produced by Inside's producer, Jack Humphrey.

Humphrey had cast Mrs. Mallett in a previous summer show, That's The Way It Goes, and felt it was time she had a series of her own. He came up with the idea of Aunt Jane, a seventy-ish spinster from a small town, who travels across Canada by bus, visiting relatives she's never met before. Her surprise visits precipitate some entertaining situations. Aunt Jane's travelling companion is a split-leaf philodendron called Harry.

Humphrey commissioned scripts from some of Canada's leading writers, including Eric Nicol, Tom Hendry, Ann Henry, Louis del Grande, Arthur Samuels and Michael Cook. The locales are spread around the country, from St. John's to Niagara Falls and Vancouver.

JANE MALLETT—one of Canada's most beloved actresses and comedienne, stars in a new situation comedy series on CBC Radio this summer, Travels With Aunt Jane, beginning Wednesday, July 10 at 10:30 p.m. on CBC-AM. Jane plays a small-town spinster travelling across Canada by bus, with her split-leaf philodendron Harry, visiting relatives she has never met before.

In order to give the series a truly regional flavor, several episodes are to be taped outside Toronto: Mrs. Mallett, a veteran of (where she's never been), Montreal, Edmonton and Vancouver. Local actors will be used and while many of them have had considerable CBC exposure, (Robert Christie, Lillian Carlson, Jane Eastwood, for example), some will be new to listeners. It's all part of Humphrey's design to encourage new writing and acting talent.

Having her own radio show is nothing new to Jane Mallett. During the fifties, Frank Peppiatt and John Aylesworth (who have since gone on to fame and fortune in Hollywood) wrote The Jane Mallett Show. She has the distinction of being on the first network radio show (in 1930), before the formation of the CBC, and has taken part in countless CBC Radio dramas, from the soap serials of the early years (John and Judy, Brave Voyage), and during the war years, Theatre of Freedom, through various CBC Stages and CBC Wednesday Night. She was known as "the girl with a thousand voices," because of her incredible range of different characters.

"The character of Aunt Jane is based on a combination of one I did for Jack for That's The Way It Goes, and my own personality," says Mrs. Mallett. As one of the most beloved ladies in Canadian theatre, the possessor of a delightful sense of humor, a warm, friendly nature, and charm galore, Jane Mallett should make Aunt Jane into everybody's favorite aunt.

SUPERSTAR blues rock singer and pianist Roberta Flack in a repeat performance on Bobo-quivari, Channel 9's pop music series to be seen Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m.

WIDE WORLD SPECIAL — Trini Lopez (right) and Jose Feliciano are the co-hosts of ABC-TV's Wide World Special, Latino Festival, featuring the songs and music of Puerto Rico, to be telecast on Wednesday at 11:30 p.m. on Channel 4. Other performers include country singer Johnny Rodriguez, rock group El Chicano and singer-comedienne Liz Torres.

girl with a short time to live, and decides to hurry her demise.

I Confess (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Alfred Hitchcock directed this interesting 1953 drama about a priest falsely accused of murder and brought to trial, starring Montgomery Clift, Anne Baxter and Karl Malden. This movie is not one of Hitchcock's best.

ple of teen-age girls who play a telephone prank, which upsets a murderer and makes them candidates for his next crime. Good direction and a capable cast (Joan Crawford, John Ireland) holds the suspense.

The Violent Ones (xx), on 13 at 8. Fernando Lamas directed and stars in this 1967 drama about three drifters who are victimized by lynch law and prejudice when they are picked up for a girl's brutal murder. Aldo Ray and Tommy Sands co-star.

The Chairman (xx), on 7 at 9. A far-fetched 1969 thriller about a top American scientist sent to the People's Republic of China on a spying mission. Filmed in Britain and starring Gregory Peck, Anne Haywood and Arthur Hill.

Breakout (xxx), on 12 at 9. A well-done 1959 British war thriller about a group of soldiers trying to break out of an Italian POW camp, who realize there's a traitor among them. Familiar plot but well-acted by Richard Todd and Richard Attenborough.

The Bamboo Saucer (xx), on 13 at 11. Dan Duryea and John Ericson star in this 1968 combination of sci-fi and Cold War politics that finds both the Russians and Americans investigating a downed saucer in Red China.

Lafayette Escadrille (x), on 12 at 11:30. A corny, melodramatic 1958 story about an American boy who runs away to France and joins the Foreign Legion, starring Tab Hunter and David Janssen.

Mafia (xxx), on 7 at 11:45. A strong, well-made 1968 melodrama about a Sicilian village dominated by the underworld, starring Lee J. Cobb and Nehemiah Persoff.

Three Sergeants from Bengal (x), on 2 at 9 at midnight. 1968 Italian-made adventure set in 1890 India. Secret Ceremony (xxx), on 6 and 8 midnight. A trio of superstars (Elizabeth Taylor, Robert Mitchum and Mia Farrow) is the lure in this macabre, muddled but interesting 1968 drama. The plot, if it can be simply stated, concerns a warped and wealthy Miss Farrow who brings home a blowsy Miss Taylor as

TV Actors May Vote to Strike

HOLLYWOOD — Actors seeking higher pay, including more money from television reruns, have begun mailing out strike authorization ballots.

The Screen Actor's Guild, representing movie and television actors and actresses, began the mailing to its 27,000 members.

The union is negotiating with the association of motion picture and television producers and the three major television networks, ABC, NBC and CBS, for a new contract with a July 1 deadline.

The union wants a hike of 25 per cent in the current minimum of $483 a week plus a payment of 100 per cent of the original salary every time a show is rerun on television in prime time.

The current contract calls for 50 per cent of the minimum scale, plus 15 per cent of salary above the minimum, for the first rerun, with lower payments for each subsequent showing, down to 15 per cent of the minimum.

Union leaders said that in 1966, its members earned $40.5 million, but last year, despite inflation of the past eight years, they made $37.3 million.

At the same time, television network profits increased 244 per cent in the past three years as the number of original programs decreased and the amount of prime time reruns increased, said Chester Migden, the union's national executive secretary.

Migden said that despite the image of wealthy Hollywood stars, 85 per cent of the Guild's members make less than $3,500 a year as actors. Three per cent make more than $25,000 a year, he said, and .5 per cent — 143 members — are in the star class of more than $100,000 a year.

The union said it is urging members of the public to complain to the Federal Communications Commission about the number of television reruns, encouraging the FCC to limit reruns to 25 per cent of prime time programming.

JAZZ SPECIAL — Avant garde jazzman Chico Hamilton will appear with his group on the program, Jazz at la Montreux, featuring highlights from the 1971 International Jazz Festival, to be seen on Channel 9 on Thursday at 9 p.m.

Lily Tomlin

Emmy-Winner Gets Long-Term Contract

A long-range television production agreement between the American Broadcasting Company and Emmy winner Lily Tomlin was announced by Michael D. Eisner, Vice-President, Prime Time Program Development-Production for ABC Entertainment.

The Lily Tomlin Show, a one-hour special which has completed production and which will be telecast during the 1974-75 season, will serve as the pilot for a possible series, according to Mr. Eisner. In addition, the agreement calls for the development of movies for television for Ms. Tomlin by her production company, Omnipotent, Inc.

"We are delighted to reach this agreement with Lily Tomlin," Mr. Eisner stated. "She began her television career with us on The Music Scene, and since that time, from Laugh-In to her recent Emmy award-winning special, each new endeavor has increased her reputation as a creative talent of the first rank."

Lily, Ms. Tomlin's most recent special, which aired last November, received two Emmy awards as Best Comedy-Variety Special and for the Best Writing of a Comedy-Variety Special. Ms. Tomlin was the recipient of two Emmys as the star of the special and a member of the writing staff.

Jane Wagner and Lorne Michaels, also Emmy recipients as staff writers on Lily, are
